

RALPH McGILLTeaching the
'Soviet Man'

Washington, D.C., notes: Dr. Roy M. Hall, assistant commissioner for research in the U.S. Department of Education (and a native of Georgia), recently returned from Russia where he studied the research-determined objectives of its educators. What he learned is not reassuring, especially since it now is more than ever apparent we shall for a long time be dealing with the "Soviet Man" emerging from the educational processes of the U.S.S.R.

Dr. Hall found teacher research concentrated under three major group headings. These are "Character," "Area Research," and "Development of the Total Potential."

We must make haste to say that by "character" Soviet education does not mean anything remotely resembling our common use of the word. What their methods aim to produce is "a common Soviet character." They are not secret about this. Nor do they see anything appalling in it. They are optimistic about being able to create a collective-minded person.

Soviet educators explained to Dr. Hall that they seek to educate children to subordinate self naturally and automatically. Their instruction shames thought of self. This they believe, in time, can be placed permanently in the subconscious mind.

Emphasis on Child

In order better to do this they are placing more emphasis on almost total control of the child during its school years. By 1970 they expect to have more than 50 per cent of all pupils, from kindergarten through secondary, in boarding schools. This decision grew out of research. Children whose parents, of course, did not have this "collective-character" schooling do not respond so readily if they continue to live at home. A child is always being educated, and what they learn at home often clashes with what is being taught at school. Until such parents die out and are replaced by new ones from the system, more and more children will be educated away from them.

The children study and work together. There are group tasks and projects. "Groupness" is demanded. Instruction exalts it as necessary to the welfare of the community and nation.

In area research Soviet educators try to learn to what extent work experience develops the pupil's intellectual abilities and also habits of work and an appreciation of it. Control groups are used. For a period one group alternates work and study. Others mix the two.

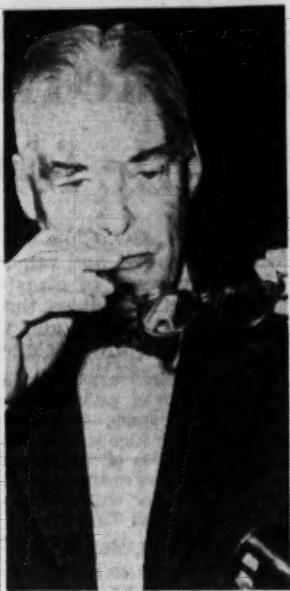

The third research area seeks to determine the total productive potential. Supervisors do this by assigning harder and harder tasks and studies. They then study what the brightest pupils and best teachers accomplished and assign this to the slower learners.

Persons Needed

They also estimate how many persons will be needed in each segment of society and direct to schools enough pupils to become skilled workers, semi-skilled laborers, teachers, doctors, et cetera.

Dr. Hall believes their decision eight months ago to add enough manual work to lengthen the time spent in school by a full year grew out of the fact the Soviets were having difficulty finding high level employment for all its graduates. The government was fearful of the discontent of a generation of educated young men and women who would expect work commensurate with their learning and would not all be able to have it. Khrushchev did say, one recalls, that too many Soviet young people thought education made them too good to work with their hands.

Dr. Hall further believes some of their educational statistics may not accurately be compared with ours. Their secondary schools and colleges weed out the lazy and the slow. Their net averages are from their brightest. Ours include the best and those who barely get by. Our schools, in general, hold back our brightest and make them roughly two years behind the best in Europe. Our system's chief weakness perhaps lies in this fact. But Soviet educational objectives appalled him. They do me too.

"A SOUND DECISION"
Secretary HerterU2 Jolted
Khrushchev,
Herter Says

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Secretary of State Herter said Friday that Soviet Premier Khrushchev's power in Russia may have been "seriously undermined" by the American spy plane incident.

Herter expressed the view at a historic congressional inquiry into the Eisenhower administration's handling of the U2 plane flight and subsequent collapse of the summit talks in Paris.

He frankly admitted that without the U2 flight to seize upon, Khrushchev might have found it impossible to torpedo the summit negotiations. Democratic critics have charged that administration "blunders" in this regard gave Khrushchev the tools for scuttling the talks.

TIMING DEFENDED

But Herter defended the timing of the flight over Russia on the eve of the Paris conference as a "sound decision." He said weather conditions later in the year would have prevented high-altitude aerial photography and thus denied the United States "very important" intelligence information.

Herter also acknowledged that President Eisenhower broke a worldwide precedent for heads of state in deciding to admit the aerial spy activities over Russia and to assume personal responsibility for them. He said Eisenhower took this step, in part, to expose to the world the "danger of surprise attack" from secrecy-shrouded Russia.

Herter was the opening witness at the inquiry, conducted behind closed doors by the 17-member Senate foreign relations committee headed by Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark.). Director Allen W. Dulles of the Central Intelligence Agency, which had charge of the U2 flights, and Defense Secretary Gates are expected to testify later.

SOVIET SHOCKED?

Herter said it must have been a "great shock" to military and civilian leaders in Russia to find out that their nation had been spied upon by American reconnaissance planes for the four years such flights were made.

Herter said Khrushchev's "feeling of frustration" over the Soviet's inability to do anything

Ike Orders
End to Aid
For Cuba

By LEWIS GULICK

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower has ordered an end to U.S. economic aid programs in Cuba within 180 days, the State Department announced Friday.

Eisenhower's slap at Prime Minister Fidel Castro's regime is the toughest yet since the bearded Cuban launched his bitter anti-American campaign.

ACCOMPLISH LITTLE

Officials said the U.S. government decided to shut down the aid projects because Castro has shown no interest in their continuance and because they seemed to be accomplishing little in improving U.S.-Cuban relations.

Eisenhower acted under a 1960 foreign aid law provision calling for a halt to assistance to Cuba unless the President finds it to be in the interest of the United States and of the Western Hemisphere.

TWO SMALL PROGRAMS

The White House directive actually applied only to two comparatively small programs that have totaled about $150,000 to $200,000 a year. The projects involved aid to Cuba's civil aviation system, with the help of three U.S. technicians, and aid to Cuban agriculture experiments, involving six U.S. experts, officials said.

American arms aid to Cuba was cut off before Castro came to power on Jan. 1, 1959, except for the training of a few military pilots. U.S. authorities said the last two of the Cuban pilots are slated to finish their training at the Corpus Christi, Tex., Naval Air Station by June 30.

By far the largest U.S. governmental assistance to Cuba, even though indirect, remains intact. This is the U.S. sugar law which benefits Cuban growers by some 150 million dollars a year through SAVANNAH—This world needs leadership as it never needed it before," U.S. Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn said here Friday night, and he left no doubt that he feels Sen. Johnson is the best man to supply it.

Rayburn delivered a brief but eloquent pitch for his Texas colleague in a speech at the annual banquet of the Georgia Bar Assn. His first reference to Johnson, the Senate majority leader, brought a quick burst of applause from attorneys.

"Civilization as we know it... is facing its greatest peril," Rayburn said. "This year we have a rendezvous with destiny." Americans must pay a price to have and to keep freedom, he added.

"If the United States of America ever needed a strong man, that is now," he said. Then he told the audience that the Texas delegation is planning to introduce

120 U.S. Jets
To Go to Asia

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Gen. Thomas D. White announced Friday night that the Air Force will send 120 supersonic fighter planes and other aircraft to the restlessness Southeast Asia area next week for a "training exercise."

White, the Air Force chief of staff, issued his announcement at a time of rising expectations here that the Communists will stir up trouble in the Orient in the wake of the summit conference collapse.

Defense Secretary Thomas S. Gates Jr., pointing to that possibility earlier this week, told allies of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization that SEATO is prepared "to parry any likely Communist threat."

The Air Force's "composite air strike force" will start leaving California on June 1 for Clark Air Force Base in the Philippines.

The force of fighters, reconnaissance planes, in-flight refueling tankers and troop carrier planes will train in the Philippines, Thailand and Formosa.

Timing of the exercise was considered significant. Military men expect increased Communist pressures around the rim of Southeast Asia and Formosa. They believe that Chinese Communist leader Mao Tse-tung has been "unleashed" after the summit failure.

The Air Force pointed out in its announcement that composite strike forces "like the ones involved in the trans-Pacific move-

Mystery Object
Not a Sub, Navy
Finds in Florida

KEY WEST, Fla. (UPI)—A U.S. Navy spokesman said Friday night the Navy was "fairly certain" that an underwater object earlier contacted by electronics sound was not a submarine.

Capt. Sam Loomis, chief of staff for the commander of the naval base, Key West, said the Navy now believes the object was some sort of underwater wreckage.

Earlier, the Navy said in Washington it believed the object was a submarine. There had been immediate speculation the ship might be Russian.

The Navy's Washington announcement said six anti-submarine warfare ships had been conducting an inquiry for several days.

Bowen Loses Court Fight
To Halt Klan Meeting Today

DeKalb Superior Court Judge H. O. Hubert denied Friday a petition by County Commissioner J. O. Bowen which sought to halt the Ku Klux Klan from meeting in the county courthouse Saturday.

The judge said that Bowen and his lawyer, Young Fraser, had failed to give evidence sustaining their petition that the Klan is a subversive organization and a cross would be burned on the courthouse grounds.

Bowen brought the suit against J. R. Denney, DeKalb barber and Exalted Cyclops of a DeKalb Klan unit. Denney was the first witness called to the stand by Bowen's lawyer.

By JACK STRONG

Denney testified that he had been the leader of a county Klan unit less than a year, and had attended many Klan meetings during the past 20 years. He said he did not know how many Klan units there were in the county. He declared he could not give the names or the number of members in his unit.

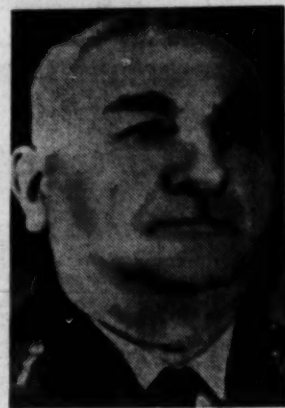

To Fraser's persistent questioning of what the 20,000 spectators the Klan had predicted for the 8 p.m. meeting would "look at," Denney responded: "They'll look at the Klansman—the pure white man."

Denney's lawyer, James Venable, repeatedly objected that Fraser had not laid proper groundwork for admission of evidence that the Klan was subversive. The judge sustained most of Venable's objections.

About 150 people attended the hearing, many county and courthouse officials among them. Outside, cameramen lined the sidewalk in response to Judge Hubert's order that they not take any pictures on the courthouse grounds or in the courthouse during the trial. The judge said the cameramen would have to ask permission to take pictures of per-

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP)—Jubilant Turks cheered through the streets Friday, hailing military leaders for ousting the dictatorial Premier Adnan Menderes.

Menderes and many of his ministers and parliamentary supporters were under arrest after the early morning coup.

A military spokesman hinted the deposed Premier might be put on trial.

NEWSPAPERS RESUME

The head of the new ruling military group declared he has no desire to become a dictator.

Newspapers silenced by Menderes' increasingly arbitrary regime were told they could resume publishing immediately. Under Menderes many editors had been summarily imprisoned. Announcements said all public officials will return to their normal duties Saturday. Military commanders were ordered to insure that the situation in the country remains normal.

Restrictions on landings at Turkish airports, imposed during the day, were lifted.

PEOPLE JUBILANT

Throughout the nation the population reacted with relief at the overthrow of Menderes' government. In Istanbul, civilians embraced members of the armed forces in the streets. There were tears of joy from youthful demonstrators who had spearheaded protests against the Menderes regime.

There also were cheers when Lt. Gen. Cemal Gursel, an old soldier recently tossed out by Menderes as head of the ground forces, announced in a special communique that Parliament had been dissolved. New elections were promised "soon."

Gursel heads the group of high-

Jury to Get
King's Tax
Case Today

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—Testimony in the perjury trial of the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. was completed late Friday.

Special Judge James J. Carter said the jury will get the case shortly before noon Saturday after two hours of arguments by state and defense attorneys and the formal charge by the judge outlining the law.

King, who spent most of Friday on the witness stand, denied the state's charge of lying in the filing of his state income tax returns in 1956. He said he reported his income to the best of his knowledge and ability.

Before the defense rested, King's lawyers produced testimony from an Atlanta Negro accountant, J. B. Blayton Sr., who made his own audit of the Negro integration leader's financial records for the year in question.

Blayton said his analysis showed King underestimated his receipts from speaking tours by some $235 but that the difference came in money paid to him for expenses. And he said in his opinion that is not taxable.

After defense attorneys finished questioning the Negro minister, circuit solicitor (prosecutor) William F. Thetford put the defendant through a detailed examination.

Best Census Guess:
Over Million Here

The best guess is that the Atlanta metropolitan area will make its goal—1,000,000 people in '60.

The U. S. Census Bureau hasn't made it official, but the figures for Clayton, Cobb and Gwinnett counties indicate the metropolitan area will go over the top.

Each of these exceeded the 1959 estimate of its population. Cobb had 112,446, the Census Bureau said, against an estimate of 105,000.

Clayton had 46,065 against an estimate of 38,500.

Gwinnett's population of 43,518, announced earlier in the week, was 5,519 better than the 1959 estimate.

Thomas McWhirter, regional census director, said the totals for Fulton and DeKalb counties will be announced Saturday.

Figures for towns in Cobb County were reported as follows:

Marietta 25,312, Smyrna 12,084, Acworth 2,336, Austell 1,866, Ken-

U.N. Calls on Big 4 To Try Talks Again

By MILTON BESSER

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The Security Council called Friday on the Big Four powers to resume negotiations on major East-West issues with U.N. help. But hot U.S.-Soviet exchanges that preceded the vote raised doubts the action would have any immediate practical results.

The vote was 9-0 with two abstentions on a four-nation resolution aimed at ending a week of angry debate on a harmonious note. The abstainers were the Soviet Union and Poland.

Last-minute diplomatic maneuvering avoided an outright Soviet veto.

The resolution, as adopted, avoided any specific reference to halting of aerial spy flights as demanded by the Russians.

It contained a general appeal to all governments "to respect each other's sovereignty, territorial integrity and political independence, and to refrain from any action which might increase tensions." The Soviet Union lost out in a final attempt to have the Council put into the resolution a statement that aerial flights by one country over the territory of another constituted a threat to peace.

RUSSIA LOSES

The vote on that section of the resolution was 2 in favor, 6 against and 3 abstentions. Only Poland and the Soviet Union voted yes. Ecuador, Ceylon and Tunisia abstained.

Fresh in the minds of U.N. delegates was Friday morning's clash between U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko.

Lodge declared internal political pressures caused the Soviet Union to provoke the crisis over the U2 spy plane incident with the aim of creating a pretext for a new zig-zag in foreign policy.

LODGE RAPS GROMYKO

He lashed out at Gromyko for charging that President Eisenhower's policies had brought mankind to the brink of war. He said internal pressures appeared to be dictating Gromyko's course.

He added that the only other possible explanation is "that Mr. Gromyko has taken leave of his senses, and I do not consider that this has happened."

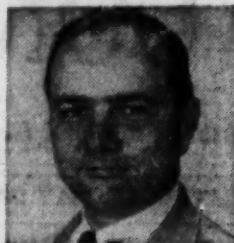

Gromyko recalled to the Council that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev has used kind words about Eisenhower in the past, but said the United States could not expect such expressions now.

Missile-Killer Nails Its Eighth 'Enemy'

EGLIN AIR FORCE BASE, Fla. (AP)—A supersonic missile and a jet fighter drone were intercepted by two Bomarc-A missiles Friday in a successful defense against a simulated sneak aerial attack.

The interceptions over the Gulf of Mexico were a continuation of a successful series of tests of the ground-to-air defense weapon during the past two weeks. Eight straight kills now have been accomplished.

In Friday's mission, the 47-foot Bomarc-A dove within several feet of a supersonic Regulus II missile and a QF80 jet drone. As the sleek missiles swept on target, proximity fuses in their noses were set off.

The fuses, in turn, would have set off the Bomarc's atomic warheads and destroyed the targets. Instead the Regulus and the remote-controlled QF80, a converted Shooting Star jet fighter, were recovered for use in further tests. The Regulus has a speed of about 1,500 miles per hour.

The two targets were spotted minutes apart by radar stations along the west coast of Florida. The Bomarc-A was launched from their Santa Rosa Island shelters by semi-automatic ground environment control center at Gunter AFB, Montgomery, Ala.

Electronic computers of the Montgomery Defense Sector fed information into the Bomarc-A and directed their courses to intercept the targets.

Integration Clause In School Bill Hit

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Southern senators served notice Friday that they will try to knock an anti-segregation amendment out of the $1,300,000,000 school construction bill passed by the House.

Sen. Lister Hill (D-Ala.), chairman of the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee, said he and other Southerners were "unalterably and unequivocally" opposed to the integration amendment sponsored in the House by Negro Rep. Adam Clayton Powell (D-N.Y.).

Hill and others, including Senate Democratic whip Mike Mansfield (Mont.) and GOP whip Thomas H. Kuchel (Calif.), agreed that a House-Senate Conference Committee would be asked to resolve differences between the House bill and a $1,833,000,000 Senate-passed bill.

This strategy would avoid a Senate floor fight, and possible Southern filibuster, against the House amendment barring funds for segregated schools. But it also could mean new dangers for the bill.

The House bill, passed Thursday night, would provide grants to the state of 325 million dollars a year for four years for public school construction.

If the bill is permitted to go to conference, however, it is conceivable that both the anti-segregation amendment and the aid-for-teachers proposals would be dropped.

Still Wants Ike's Visit, Japan Says

TOKYO (AP)—Prime Minister Nobusuke Kishi's government notified the United States Friday it intends to stand by the invitation for President Eisenhower to visit Japan in June regardless of noisy nationwide opposition from left-wing groups.

The declaration came amid concern about the treatment the President and Mrs. Eisenhower may receive from demonstrators. The demonstrators now are at the height of frenzied efforts to block the new U.S.-Japan security treaty.

It goes into effect June 19, the day Eisenhower is due here. They have promised widespread agitation if the President comes.

Foreign Minister Aichihiro Fujimura told newsmen: "At the present time there is no intention here of asking for a delay or cancellation of the President's scheduled visit. To do so on grounds of security would put Japan in a bad light."

The phrase "at the present time" left an escape clause for the government. Admitting the government's desire to save face, Fujimura said he does not expect the President will back down "except in the event of physical illness on his part."

Hundreds of thousands of Japanese have demonstrated in Tokyo and other parts of the country in the past few weeks to demand scrapping of the new security treaty.

Quake-Hit Chileans Battle for Food

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP)—The earth-shaking that has killed thousands and remade the topographical map of Chile in a week of disaster continued Friday amid a great effort to relieve the hunger and misery of survivors. Earthquakes and volcanic violence still spread terror over southern Chile.

At one illustrative point on a vast panorama of pathos, police had to fire warning shots over the heads of disaster victims who tried to pounce on emergency food stocks set up for orderly distribution at stricken Valdivia.

DEATH LIST CLIMBS

Valdivia, a city of 100,000, was one of the hardest hit in the week-long series of Chilean disasters for which officials estimate the death toll may reach 5,000.

As reports continued to come in from remote areas, the list of dead and missing climbed.

A landslide in the mountain community of Rupanco Tuesday buried 113 persons under tons of rocks, it was reported Friday, pushing the known total of dead and missing to close to 3,000.

NEW MOUNTAINS

Two new volcanoes and new mountains have been born as a result of the earthquakes, new islands have sprung up off-shore and new lakes have appeared, while old valleys, mountains, lakes and islands have disappeared.

Two new quakes were reported by the University of Chile's Seismological Institute Friday.

At Valdivia, where about 40 per cent of the business and industrial areas are in ruins, the desperate need for food and water was made worse by the poor condition of the airport which prevented big U.S. Air Force Globemasters from landing with supplies.

But smaller U.S. and Chilean planes were ferrying in food, blankets, medicine, clothes and medical personnel.

A total of 54 of the Globemasters are due here eventually to help in a giant airlift.

Reports from Ancud, which was devastated by two tidal waves as well as by earthquakes, said hundreds of persons, many of them fishermen, were still missing. All food and fuel is rationed.

It was the same story throughout thousands of square miles, with curfews established in most places and police guarding food depots.

Dr. Venable Replies to Rep. Kidd

The director of the State Health department said Friday Rep. Culver Kidd's criticism of the way

Milledgeville State Hospital is being run "didn't tell us anything we weren't already working on".

Dr. John Venable, whose department has jurisdiction over the hospital, said he had hoped that Rep. Kidd's special House-Senate Committee on Mental Health would be "more helpful" in its recommendations about the hospital.

Rep. Kidd, of Milledgeville, was critical Thursday of the way the Health Department has administered the hospital in the first year since it was transferred from the State Welfare Department. He said most of the faults his committee found, however, were attributed to lack of funds and that the hospital authorities were correcting some of the committee's complaints.

HITS "GENERALITIES"

Dr. Venable said Friday he wished the committee had cooperated with the department to the extent of making its recommendations "to us at the same time they were released to the press."

He charged that disclosures about problems at the institution were made instead in "generalities to the press."

Meanwhile, Rep. Kidd Friday urged statewide support for Georgia's mental health program in a luncheon address before the Atlanta Lions Club.

He did not refer to his earlier criticism of the Health Department, but, rather, had kind words for the general steps toward improving the program made in the last year.

10-YEAR STRUGGLE

It took Kansas 10 years "to get from the bottom to the top" in nationwide mental health programs, he said.

"I believe we can do it in five years if we continue our program as we have been going," he told the civic club.

He outlined legislative steps taken at the last General Assembly session to advance the program, but he said Georgia still needs to spend a great deal more money for patient care.

With an additional appropriation of $1.3 million expected to become effective July 1, the state will be spending about $12 million a year on the Milledgeville Hospital, he said.

That breaks down to $2.75 a day for each patient, he added, while experts say the minimum expenditure should be $3.50 a day.

Reporter Is Cited by Judge Pye

Judge Durwood T. Pye Friday brought a contempt action against an Atlanta Journal reporter in connection with a story written about a robbery trial in his court last year.

The Fulton Superior Court judge filed a four-count contempt of court citation against reporter Gordon Roberts for a story he wrote about the trial of Harold James Meriwether on June 2, 1959.

Previously, Judge Pye had issued a rule for contempt against Atlanta Newspapers, Inc., based upon the same Journal article and an article which appeared in The Atlanta Constitution. This resulted in a $20,000 fine which was reversed in the Court of Appeals. Following that, the rule was amended, and after another hearing, another fine of $20,000 for contempt was assessed against Atlanta Newspapers, Inc. An appeal is being prepared from that order.

Roberts was ordered to show cause before Judge Pye at 3:30 p.m. next Friday why he should not be adjudged in contempt for writing the story and be "punished for thus interfering with the business of the court."

The contempt order contends that a mistrial had to be declared in the robbery trial because of stories published in The Journal and The Constitution which jurors said they read. It said the stories introduced "extraneous matters into the case."

Roberts, the order said, was not charged with responsibility for The Constitution article. But it added:

"The impact of said article of Gordon Roberts in The Atlanta Journal, even without said article in The Constitution, upon being seen and read by jurors as aforesaid, was calculated to deprive the accused . . . of his right to a fair trial."

Why Turn Down School Buildings?

We confess to disappointment that Georgia's congressional delegation has voted against a federal school construction bill.

A building cannot take sides in a political issue. Bricks and stone will not argue pro or con on segregation. Absolutely all a schoolhouse can do is provide teaching space in which children can be educated.

And, we ask, what difference does it make if tax dollars from other states help pay for some of the buildings? There will be some communities in Georgia which, using a freedom of choice measure, will vote to keep public schools. Shall Georgia taxpayers shoulder all the load and refuse federal aid to buy bricks, cement, stones, timber? Does this really make good sense?

We can't expect federal aid to be spent against federal law. Georgia must have new buildings. We can't forever isolate ourselves and further erode and weaken our ability to educate our children.

We see the early census results showing many Georgia counties to be losing population. Do we wish still others to move away to obtain education for their children? We might note that in Virginia's Prince Edward County the rural foundation which promised free segregated schools has about run out of money. It announces that next September tuition charges of $265 and $240 will be made for high school and elementary pupils. A private system can at best provide inadequate education in a rural area. But it cannot do even that in any populous county with hopes for an industrial future.

Fulton County's school board has compiled enough data to know the need is desperate. The 1959 building budget required a minimum of $4,500,000. It obtained only $3,325,000. Thus, the first million will have to be spent on facilities which should have been provided out of 1959 funds.

All over this state the need for school buildings is desperate.

The federal government bill will, if it passes the Senate, provide 50 per cent of all costs. Are we so isolated and withdrawn from reason and common sense that we are afraid to accept the assistance of mute bricks and stones?

Bob Russell Would Fill Democratic Post Ably

Robert Russell seems to us a splendid choice for the position of national committeeman for the Democratic Party in Georgia.

His father, the late Judge Robert Russell, was an outstanding member of the federal bench. Before assuming this post he was recognized as one of the most astute political minds in the state. Some of this must have rubbed off on "Little Bob."

Indeed, politics seem to be a part of the Russell inheritance. Grandfather Russell was a member of the State Supreme Court and was for years its chief justice. Bob's uncle is Sen. Richard B. Russell, unopposed for the Democratic nomination to the U. S. Senate. And shortly after Ernest Vandiver married Miss Betty Russell, daughter of Robert Sr., he began to make strides in politics. He has become a governor refreshingly respected for his integrity and character even by those who do not agree with all his policies.

We think Bob Russell will make a fine national committeeman.

Coup by Turkish Army Can Be Helpful to West

There is one comforting fact in the news from Turkey where an army, friendly to the West, took over the government which had shown an utter incapacity to govern without military support.

This warming fact is that all the Turks will ever give to communism is the back of their hands.

There is a real possibility that out of this military coup d'etat will come a more stable government. The United States was increasingly embarrassed by the course of the ousted Premier Adnan Menderes. He had violated the Turkish constitution and was enforcing totalitarian measures which were entirely contrary to the democratic principles which this country supports.

We were in the position of having to go along with a government because it was friendly to us but which we knew could not endure because it ran counter to the wishes of the Turkish people. This was our predicament in Korea.

The Turkish army was magnificent in Korea. Because of the country's long history of defending itself against Russian czars and dictators, there is a strong pro-Western feeling in the army. Americans who fought in Korea came home with tremendous respect for the fighting qualities of the Turks.

If the Turkish army committee can obtain and follow good advice and provide honest elections, the downfall of the Menderes government can be turned into a real triumph for the West. But unless it does find such leadership, the outlook will become much more grave for all the Western nations.

'Lawyer of Year' Title Fits John Sibley Well

Georgia's Bar Assn., in annual convention, has voted Atlanta's John A. Sibley as its "Lawyer of the Year." We heartily approve the choice.

Mr. Sibley's head frequently has been anointed here of late with the oil of praise and his cup of commendation runneth over. All of it is merited.

His fellow lawyers chose him for their greatest honor because of his really enormous service to Georgia as chairman of the State Study Commission in the school crisis. Ten district hearings were held and in all of them the commission acted fairly and provided a fine debate for the people. Citizens learned there was another side than that offered by the sordid klans, the citizens' councils and the fanatic extremist groups which do not represent children, but their own emotions and prejudices.

For the first time the people of Georgia were able to understand that the real issue is children and their future. We are not trying to decide about politics but whether or not our children will have adequate education. Mr. Sibley and the committee he chaired provided a statewide discussion. The result was a freedom of choice recommendation which we trust will be adopted as the eventual solution.

Maybe, in time, we can take the schools away from the ambitious politicians and ruthless extremists and give them back to teachers and pupils.

We are pleased to join in the applause for Mr. Sibley.

Boy Scouts Fund Drive Was Whopping Success

If the cause is just, if the story is well told, if the canvassing is vigorous, then people respond nobly to fund drives. The campaign by the Atlanta Area Council Boy Scouts of America for a million and a quarter dollars to build a new Bert Adams Camp is a notable example.

A vigorous drive for a fine project has brought complete success.

The good news was told officially at a victory dinner Thursday night.

The new Bert Adams Reservation, built to take care of 1,000 boys a week, is assured.

The Constitution congratulates the Scouters in the 12 counties which make up the Atlanta Area for their vision and leadership. We commend, too, those who have been motivated by foresight and unselfishness to pledge the dollars to meet the need.

Scouting's greatest handicap has been the lack of funds to broaden the base and reach more boys.

The new "Bert Adams" will expand the Scout program to make it a more effective tool in building men.

Big 'If' Breathes Hard On Family Farm's Neck

The "family farm" can survive... but there is a big "if" with which to contend.

The Bankers' Farm Bulletin, of the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta, has taken a look at the disappearing family-sized farm. The bankers say that if such farms are to survive they must have management skills "of a high order."

This means a considerable amount of study. A successful farmer must read the agricultural bulletins and special reports. He should know some basic farm chemistry. He must understand about budgets and bookkeeping. He needs to be able to understand and apply technical advice and information. Up to date production techniques are necessary.

This is not really new information. As family-sized farms have continued to decline, we have seen those which survive. They invariably are managed by persons with skills and a good amount of book learning, formally or informally acquired.

Here again we see a melancholy picture of the past. Our educational lacks, especially in the rural regions, have seriously handicapped bygone generations.

Too many farmers now are unable to compete because they can't overcome the big "if." But it is good to know that family farming as a way of life need not disappear... "if."

State Election Procedure Termed Curb To Healthy Two-Party System in State

Atlanta—In reference to Cecil Nelson's letter published in The Constitution on May 21, I would like to point out that no Georgia law "forbids" a second party in the state. There are laws, however, which seem designed to make difficult the development of an effective two-party system.

The Republican Party, for instance, has a working convention method by which candidates for county, district and statewide offices may be nominated. In order for the names of those nominated to be placed on the ballot at the general election the party must have polled at least five per cent of the vote at the last preceding general election or the candidate must file with the secretary of state a petition signed by five per cent of the registered voters in the area to which his candidacy is applicable.

Nevertheless, these obstacles could be overcome. Since the effectiveness of a political party is most obvious to the voter at his community level it would seem that the best hope of those who favor a healthy two-party situation in Georgia would be to nominate in convention and elect at the local, county, district and state levels in the general election.

Good Taste Urged

In Mountain Memorial

Atlanta—It is to be hoped that the Stone Mountain Memorial Committee will look carefully into any art work they commission for the mountain.

We do not need any "free-form" art, any mobiles or whatnot. If we do not look carefully to what we are doing we may find ourselves with some horrible modernistic creation which will be far removed from the spirit of the memorial.

The Stone Mountain Memorial means something sacred to Southerners. Let us not desecrate it.

Soviet Leaders Seen As 'Selfish Realists'

Salisbury, N.C.—Those of us who are unselfish idealists forget that most of mankind are selfish realists. These selfish realists are pushing to attain their own selfish ends in the world. The selfish realists may belong to any of our churches and they may take a part in many humanitarian enterprises but you can depend on it that whatever good they do is for a show or to cover up some of their own selfish deeds.

The people in charge of Russia today are selfish realists. They are looking for more power and glory for themselves. Uncle Sam is a devil of the blackest hue because he stands between them and world power.

These Russian rulers have forgotten that an opinion expressed but not backed up by facts is the property of the one who expresses it. Such a false opinion hurts the one who expresses it and not the one against whom it was hurled.

I wonder why we have given away 92 billion dollars in the last 30 years if we are like people who live in the jungle. No, Mr. K., you will have to present more facts than you have presented or stand before the world as a convicted liar.

Gather 'Round For Graduation

Theater in the round I have seen. You know, where the stage is in the middle of the arena and the audience sits all around. The boxing ring has long been the center of attraction. But until this week, no graduation in the round. J. W. Bagwell, principal, worked it out that way for commencement at North Gwinnett High School.

This was the second season for North Gwinnett, two or three miles northwest of Suwanee, toward Buford Dam. The high school came from the sensible and serene consolidation of Suwanee High and Sugar Hill High.

The problem was to use the gymnasium as a satisfactory setting for graduation.

Principal Bagwell did it by making the whole gym floor a stage.

The 62 seniors were aligned in "U" design. The close of kin had seats at each end of the floor. Others in the audience held down the bleachers.

The effect was highly satisfactory.

But extracurricular sound effects — hail on the metal gym roof — held up the award of diplomas for 10 minutes because even with a good PA system, the seniors could not hear the principal as he called the names.

NO PRACTITIONER: The graduation speaker advised the NGHS seniors that a sense of direction is far more important even in a jet age than speed. Then he made a wrong turn leaving the school building and got lost on the way home.

JEST FOR TODAY: Customer, "I'm here to make the final payment on the baby's furniture."

Cashier at furniture store, "Thank you so much. And how is the baby getting along?"

Customer, "Splendidly. She was valdicatorian at commencement this week."

FOR UNDERGRADS: Let those youngsters who watch brothers and sisters get diplomas this season note carefully that the typical high school graduate will earn in a lifetime $50,000 more than the eighth grade graduate and $30,000 more than he or she who drops out of high school.

That diploma makes cents. Getting a signed sheepskin means a chance to edge deeper on the hog.

Communist China Prods Khrushchev

NEW YORK—A violent ideological dispute between the Soviet Union and Communist China was raging on the eve of the summit meeting and may now have been resolved in favor of Peiping. That conclusion has been reached by some specialists in Soviet affairs after examining texts of an unusual exchange of ideological arguments between Moscow and Peiping.

The exchange occurred on the 19th anniversary of Lenin's birth, April 22—10 days before the U2 incident.

The text of the Chinese arguments has been published in the April 26 issue of the English-Language Peking Review, which has reached New York. The Soviet presentation was contained in an address at the Lenin stadium in Moscow by Otto Kuusinen, member of the Communist Party's presidium. His speech was published by Pravda, Soviet Party newspaper.

It seems probable that the controversy and the radically opposed views of the Soviet and Chinese Communists played a major role in the evolution of Premier Khrushchev's policy on the eve of the Paris meeting.

The documents make clear that as late as April 22 the Soviet and Chinese positions were far apart. The Chinese were insisting that little or nothing might be expected from negotiation with the "imperialist West." They said that President Eisenhower had continued to conduct a warlike, aggressive policy despite the Camp David discussions with Khrushchev last September.

The public Soviet position hewed strictly to Khrushchev's position that discussions with the West were possible. However, some Soviet specialists believed that privately some members of Khrushchev's entourage supported the Chinese view.

When the United States reconnaissance plane was shot down in the Soviet Union, the Soviet opponents of Khrushchev's philosophy, aided by the powerful arguments advanced by the Chinese, may have been able, according to this view, to persuade a majority of the Soviet Communist Party's Central Committee and its presidium to switch over to the Chinese line.

If, as some signs now indicate, Moscow has gone over in major part to Peiping's point of view, this would mean, the specialists said, further changes in Soviet policy. It would probably signal a new era of tough foreign policy and possibly turn toward Stalinism domestically.

The first Soviet echoes of the Chinese point of view were contained in Khrushchev's public statements in Paris. A stronger reflection of the Chinese ideological position was contained in an article published this week by the Soviet ideological journal Kommunist, which was ostensibly an attack on President Tito of Yugoslavia.

High Ideals Lend Purpose to Living

I was breaking bread with a friend who recently published a book. I told him how helpful the book had been to me and I commended him for the achievement the book represented. "This is the best book you have written," I said enthusiastically.

There was an awkward pause and then he said, "My best book hasn't been written yet. I may never be able to write it but I am trying hard."

Then he explained what he meant. All of his previous efforts he considered to be merely preludes to something he hoped would represent his best achievement. He was dissatisfied with all he had done before. He was, of course, happy that his other books were being read and that some people were finding them to be helpful. But he had no personal interest in them any more. He said he was ashamed of them for they did not represent his best work.

Later as I thought about our conversation I wondered if my friend wasn't hoping to do the impossible. His ambition was beyond his talent. He was in quest of the pot of gold at the farthest extreme of the rainbow. He was searching for the unattainable. But I did not feel sorry for him. I knew that the dream he sought would give energy and purpose to his life.

The best way to judge a man is not by his achievements but by his ideals. Our ideals give direction and impetus to our lives.

Our Lord set before us a vision of a Kingdom which seems always to be beyond our grasp.

Some spiritual leaders might have inspired their followers with the possible but Jesus held before those who loved Him a perfection which seems to defy mortal achievement. "Be ye perfect," He said, "as your heavenly Father is perfect."

The kingdom of love and brotherhood, in which the redeemed shall live according to God's holy purposes, is beyond and higher than our human life. Yet there is something wonderful about the millions of people who resolve to be satisfied by nothing less than the realization of that kingdom.

When so challenged by Jesus, we can make a genuine effort, fail to match our endeavor with His requirement and then give up. We can console ourselves by saying that we tried. Then we can lapse into the notion that we are better off not trying any more. Or we may move from one plateau of achievement to another, inspired by the goals that rise above today. As mortal creatures we shall never approximate the godly life which lies beyond but we shall enlarge and enrich the measure of our days by struggling ever onward. We shall be rewarded by the knowledge that it is better to have tried and failed than never to have tried at all.

Rockefeller Move Upsets Theorists

WASHINGTON — Gov. Rockefeller's announcement that he is open to a "draft" for the Republican presidential nomination is the logical development of his recent activities in the national political arena. These were: His renewed refusal under the most august pressure in the party to endorse the candidacy of Vice President Nixon and his notice he would not attend the Chicago convention.

In the logic of politics, these moves clearly indicated that the governor had changed his mind and intended to make himself positively instead of negatively available for the party nomination. That is precisely what Rockefeller did by his recent statement at Albany. It freed his supporters from the heavy handicap imposed by their lack of the governor's authorization of a pre-convention campaign for his nomination. To announce he will accept a "draft" is not to give his authorization in words. But in effect it amounts to the same thing.

But, though the governor's announced decision was the logical sequence of actions just prior thereto, by and large it was a surprise to the politicians here. And for these reasons:

1. They fully realized that when Rockefeller in his original statement said he would not be a "candidate" he used the word politicians recognize as meaning the user still wants the job.

2. But his subsequent statements and speeches have always indicated and sometimes specified basic differences with the President and his administration on major policies and methods. Therefore, to nominate him the Republican Convention would be choosing a party critic of the administration on a platform not unconsonant with his views. Since Republican politicians, paraphrasing former President Truman's complaint about Stevenson's campaign, agree "You cannot successfully run as a Republican with a Republican administration in power, without running on the record of that administration," they were disposed to believe that Rockefeller this year would not encourage the challenge of this precept in the convention.

3. Also, both Democratic and Republican politicians were unprepared for the Albany statement because it came after, not before (as the rules of their trade provide), Nixon had acquired at least "paper" support of a convention majority and because Rockefeller, on May 1 at Chicago, evaluated the prospect of a draft as "so remote I don't think it's even worth speculating about."

The argument that unforeseen events could bring about this Republican reversal by July was revised by the sudden disclosure of vulnerability of the President, his administration and Nixon's candidacy that was provided by the U2 episode. So, while Rockefeller's surprise encouragement to his supporters to mount a contest now seems a most unpromising gamble it just possibly could pay off next July.

CADETS MARCH

The rebellion that ended the 10-year Menderes' regime after weeks of unrest and demonstrations started in Ankara just after midnight.

War College cadets marched on the official residences of President Celal Bayar and Menderes.

There was some gunfire but military authorities denied reports that one cadet was killed in a brief fight with guards at the presidential palace.

ALL ARMED FORCES

Units from all the armed forces quickly followed up the march of the cadets and the coup was in full swing.

At Kizilay Square, scene of previous youth demonstrations against Menderes, a crowd of 400 invaded headquarters of Menderes' Democrat party, ripped pictures of Bayar and Menderes from walls, trampled them and threw them from windows.

Bowen said the Klan has no right to use the courthouse and he would encourage the bringing of the damage suit against him.

Navy Probing High TB Rate On Destroyer

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — The Navy was investigating Friday what it termed above average incidence of tuberculosis aboard the destroyer USS Hawkins.

Four sailors were hospitalized in the past 13 months and 15 others were admitted for observation. None of the 15 has been positively diagnosed as having the disease, the Navy said.

Physicians and medical corpsmen from Norfolk, Va., were conducting a massive X-ray program on the entire crew and all shore leave was cancelled until completion.

growing number of slender but promising publications—which herald a renaissance of free and creative thought on campus.

Behind them are "a small core of the concerned," who this year have been operating quietly and decisively in the intellectual catacombs, working beneath the surface of utilitarianism, conformity and apathy, to widen the vision and embolden the hearts of the "docile generation."

This spring the first issue of "Chirascuro" was published by Zack Hall and three other students who felt that "Emory University had no really adequate organ for expression." Within 48 hours, students had bought 600 copies of this thin, comprehensive, and incisive "little magazine."

Contained in the March issue: a stark, and sensitive short story by med-student Hall, some top flight poems by Larry Rubin and Van K. Brock, an article on the "Angry Young Men," and one on "The NAACP and the Use of the Word Blame," and, from Peter G. Bourne, an editorial criticizing the University for making no official statement on keeping the public schools open. Said Bourne: "We must deplore this apathy and apparent lack of convinced opinion."

The University of Georgia's Westminster Center is now publishing a lively and often caustic debate in print titled "Dialogue." Locking horns in an issue titled "Crisis in the Public Schools," students Sam Harben and Bill Hoagland first submitted their ar-appointed a board of professors, scientists and jurists to write a new constitution for the country.

Gursel arrived in Ankara from Izmir—the big NATO base in western Turkey—shortly after dawn to take personal command of the uprising.

Gursel told the nation by radio he has no plans to become a military dictator and was acting to head off "quarrels and conflicts," and "bloody fratricide."

WOULDN'T LISTEN

"I tried to reason with the politicians," he said, "but they were blinded by ambition. They would not listen and wanted to go on by force. We had to act."

Under his orders, Dean Siddik Sami Omar of Istanbul University was flown to Ankara, reportedly to form a provisional government. The educator was beaten by police after student riots against the Menderes regime April 28 signaled the way to rebellion.

The military uprising began at midnight and was virtually completed by 4 a.m. Armored brigades and thousands of tough, well-trained infantrymen moved from depots in Thrace and the bleak interior of Anatolia. They were posted at key cities in the Mediterranean nation.

STUDENTS AT FORE

In Istanbul and Ankara, the two major cities, Turks put out huge red banners bearing white crescents. Wearing by a month of rumors, crisis and political control by a powerful parliamentary committee composed only of Menderes' own party, citizens cheered the army as soldiers marched through the streets.

The lightning move followed weeks of protests against Menderes' rule. Students led the way in demonstrating against tight laws restricting the press, and decrees limiting opposition political expression.

The army, highly disciplined and traditionally neutral in politics, entered the scene relatively late.

It promised to turn power back to civilian authority after elections.

STARTED PROBE

Political unrest, long smoldering, came to a head in April when the Premier's Democratic party set up a special parliamentary commission to investigate Inonu's Republicans. Opposition political activity was banned and new restrictions placed on the press.

The demonstrations began April 28 when students paraded in Istanbul. They shouted slogans hailing the student uprising in South Korea that had just turned out President Syngman Rhee. The demonstrations spread to Ankara and Izmir but did not extend much beyond the universities. Menderes closed the universities and clamped down martial law.

Nevertheless the unrest persisted. Military cadets staged a sympathy march in Ankara last Saturday. This week fist fights erupted in Parliament as the government adjourned the session until June 20. The opposition protested it was being gagged.

Elsewhere in the state, the population boom is showing less momentum. Some of Georgia's larger cities are losing population. Macon, for example, Macon is down to 69,129 from a 1950 population of 70,252.

But Macon doesn't lose population for the same reason that some small towns do.

In Macon and other large towns, the population is gradually fanning out into the countryside—the suburbs. So the population isn't really lost. Just redistributed.

In the smaller towns, however, those which are dependent primarily on agriculture, the people are moving into bigger settlements and getting factory jobs. Farming just doesn't pay the way it used to.

McWhirter said final census figures for the state would be available in about two weeks. Official figures are available in four congressional districts—the fourth, sixth, seventh and ninth.

The seventh showed the biggest gain—448,631 persons against 367,598 for 1950. Other figures: Fourth district—322,332 (1960), 298,251 (1950); sixth — 328,639 about the flights undoubtedly had a lot to do with his angry state of mind at the summit conference.

Herter Says U2 Shook Khrushchev

Although Herter and his top expert on Soviet affairs, Charles E. (Chip) Bohlen, acknowledged they had no real information about what goes on in the innermost Kremlin circles, Herter said state department specialists believe Khrushchev's position has been badly hurt by the U2 incident.

Fulbright tried to get Herter to say whether he would place Khrushchev among those Russians favoring an aggressive course or those endorsing a peaceful course with the West. Herter said it was not possible to answer categorically.

He said those who have dealt with the Soviet leader directly "are convinced that he is genuinely in favor of a disarmament program" both for financial and humane reasons. On that basis, Herter said, he would classify Khrushchev as favoring a peaceful course.

But he added: "His more recent behavior, however, has shaken my belief that this is entirely genuine."

Herter said that besides the U2 incident there were two other factors which probably impelled Khrushchev to wreck the summit talks:

—"Serious questioning" or possibly outright opposition to the Soviet Premier's negotiations with the West by forces in the Kremlin, backed up by the Chinese Reds, who oppose any major lessening of cold war tension. In this connection, Herter speculated that one reason Soviet Defense Minister Rodion Malinovsky stuck so closely to Khrushchev in Paris was to make sure the premier did not show any "softness" towards the West.

—Khrushchev's own infatuation over the prospect that there was "little likelihood" of his getting his way at the summit in the face of Western unity, especially on the Berlin issue.

Herter said he believed Khrushchev went to Paris determined to wreck the conference and had advanced "instructions" from the Kremlin to do so.

Herter acknowledged that the practice of heads of government trying to solve world problems at the summit had "taken a hard knock" as a result of developments at Paris.

But he said that Eisenhower, by not accepting the "out" of disclaiming responsibility for the U2 flights, had avoided a trap set by Khrushchev.

his mind and flew to Bermuda. Olsson had planned to surprise his wife and children sometime Friday with a phone call from Sweden, but radio trouble gummed up that plan.

Mrs. Olsson and the four youngsters kept the vigil, waiting and wondering and thanking reporters for relaying her information on her husband's whereabouts. When The Constitution notified her Friday night he was in the air again and asked if she had any comment, she said:

"You can quote me as saying I'm quite upset. This is quite serious."

Jury to Get King's Tax Case Today

ation of some of his financial records.

Thetford sought to show that King received taxable income that he failed to report.

The integration leader persisted in his denial of any wrong doing but had difficulty in showing that several large checks he received had been deposited in any of the banks or savings and loan associations where he had accounts.

King said he may have cashed some checks, spent part of the money and deposited the rest, and referred to bank statements which showed deposits of smaller amounts than he received for speaking tours.

At one point in the cross examination, King was asked if he had made a statement accusing state authorities of prosecuting him in an effort to slow down his integration campaign.

The defendant's reply was, "since this is the first time in history anyone has been prosecuted for something like this, I could interpret it no other way."

King outlined to the jury of 12 white men a number of cash gifts he said he received during 1956 and other years.

He said the gifts totaled $1,300 to $1,500 in 1956, including $500 he said came to him after his house was bombed during the Negro boycott of city buses that year.

The defense is attempting to prove that much of the money in question came to him as gifts and are therefore tax exempt.

King testified Friday that state tax agent Lloyd Hale told him the Revenue Department didn't consider gifts to him as tax exempt but as contributions to carry on his work.

King emerged as leader of the Negro bus boycott here in 1956. He founded the Montgomery Improvement Association and directed it until he moved to Atlanta earlier this year. He is president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

The integration leader said his salary as pastor of the Montgomery Dexter Avenue Baptist Church in 1956 was $5,040 and that he received $4,110 in fees for speaking engagements for a total of $9,150.

The state contends his income for the year in question was $16,162.

Presbyterian Meeting Made 6 Big Decisions

By BETSY FANCHER

The headline-making 172nd General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. concluded this week with Atlanta's Dr. Herman L. Turner, Covenant Presbyterian Church, serving as presiding officer.

Highlights of the seven-day session:

Dr. Turner's election to moderator.

Approval of a report on faith and health that warned against healing "cults" and publicity-motivated evangelists, but stressed that Christian faith is playing an increasingly important part in healing the sick.

Commendation of orderly student demonstrations against racial segregation, such as lunch counter sitdowns.

A specific action calling for the employment of ministers without regard to race, and other actions setting standards of nondiscrimination in health and welfare agencies.

An expression of deep concern for the situation in South Africa that has resulted from the "moral absurdities of apartheid."

A statement that "it is an act of irresponsible citizenship to support or oppose a candidate solely because of his religious affiliation."

Television and the Church

The church's growing interest in television was evidenced again this week in an announcement that video tape equipment would be used at a workshop on the Art of Preaching and Communications at Emory University June 21-27.

Ministers taking part in the workshop will be able to preach a sermon or present a dramatic program before the camera, then play it back immediately for analysis, said Dr. G. Ray Jordan, director of the workshop.

The workshop will feature Dr. John W. Bachman of Union Theological Seminary, New York, author of a standard text in the field of religious broadcasting.

Other participants: Mrs. Anne Griffin, Columbia College; Dr. Roy A. Burkhardt, Columbus, Ohio; Carl Degan, Protestant Radio and Television Center; Haskell Boyter, WABE, and George Neely, associate of speech at Emory.

News and Events

The Most Rev. Francis E. Hyland, Bishop of Atlanta, and the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Michael J. Regan, officials of the diocese, will make a brief visit to Rome during June. . . . Dr. Robert C. Anderson, director of the Southern Regional Educational Board, will deliver the baccalaureate address, "Of Progress and of Change," Sunday as part of the 63rd annual commencement program at Alabama College, Montevallo, Ala. . . . Jackson Liles, president, and Lee Miller, vice president, are among the Walter League officers who will be installed at a special 11 a.m. youth service Sunday at Grace Evangelical Lutheran Church. . . . A vacation church school opens at 9:30 a.m. at Peachtree Road Evangelical Lutheran Church. . . . Miss Jane Carter, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Stubbs, of First Baptist Church; Parks R. Warnon, Druid Hills Baptist Church, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ed Howell of West End Baptist Church will participate on the program of Southern Baptists' Training Union Leadership Assemblies at Ridgeland (N.C.) Baptist Assembly in July. . . . Virginia Johnson, Atlanta; Hugh White, Columbus; Cynthia Hind, St. Simons Island; Anne Russell and John Stevens, Decatur, will be among 142 young people serving as chaplain counselors in the national parks this summer. . . . The Rev. W. Robert Mill, Episcopal chaplain to Georgia Tech and Agnes Scott College, will be honored at a reception following the 11 a.m. worship service Sunday at All Saints Episcopal Church.

Actor-Theology Student Frank Roughton

To Dramatize Sermon on Mount Tonight

Actor-theology student Frank M. Roughton will present a dramatic interpretation of the Sermon on the Mount at Avondale Methodist Church Sunday.

Mrs. Roughton will narrate the 7:30 p.m. program, and present special music on the dulcimer and auto harp, according to the Rev. W. L. Cavthon, pastor.

A student at Candler School of Theology, Emory University, Mr. Roughton was for three years a member of the cast of an American version of the Oberammergau Passion Play. He has also acted in several films.

Preacher To Speak

At Son's Graduation

The Rev. Russell L. Strange Sr., pastor of Glen Haven Presbyterian Church, will preach the baccalaureate sermon at Avondale High School at 2:30 p.m. Sunday in the gymnasium. The Rev. Mr. Strange's son, Russell Jr., is vice president of the Avondale graduating class.

Pharmacy College Hails Retiring Dr. Meyer

Dr. Minnie M. Meyer, who will retire July 1 as assistant dean of the Southern College of Pharmacy, was honored Friday night at the school's first annual awards banquet attended by some 250 persons at the Dinkler Plaza.

Dr. Oliver M. Littlejohn, dean of the college, praised Dr. Meyer for her outstanding contributions to pharmaceutical education. Dr. Rufus Harris, president of Mercer University, announced the retirement of Dr. Meyer, who has been with the college since 1948.

Dr. Meyer was showered with going-away gifts which included a color television set, a portrait and check from the alumni association, a silver table service from the college, a watch from the senior class and prescription sunglasses and beach accessories from the student body.

Award-winners included Robert Sinyard of East Point, the R. C. Hood Award for graduate with highest scholastic average; Hughes H. Register of Decatur, the Rexall Award; Spurgina Burton of Decatur, the Lehn and Fink Award; James C. Flournoy, Chamblee, and Edward Jenkins, Stone Mountain, the Senior Progress Awards; William N. Kelly, Atlanta, the Bristol Award; and Rozelle Bishop, Orlando, Fla., and Don Roberts, Nashville, Tenn., the Mercer Awards.

Billy Graham

My Work Is to Bring You to Jesus

QUESTION: When you were in Jerusalem I tried to contact you because I am now interested in changing my religion. It was thought you could help me at that time. I'm sorry I missed you. I wonder if you could tell me how one goes about changing his religion. —E. P.

ANSWER: It is not the purpose of my ministry to go about trying to get people to change their religion. That may sound like a strange statement coming from one whose lifetime is dedicated to the cause of evangelism. But you see, simply to change from one religion to another is not going to help you. There are many heavy-hearted, dissatisfied people who think changing their religion is going to solve some problem, but it is not likely it will.

What I have been seeking to do is to introduce men and women to Jesus Christ. That is something quite different from changing your religion. It is a change so great the Bible describes it as "passing from death to life."

That is why I cannot tell you the formalities of changing from one religion to another. I can only tell you how to know Jesus Christ . . . who can change your life.

Greatest Show on Wheels

It's almost time once again for the greatest show on wheels—the 44th annual Indianapolis 500. Ray Harroun, averaging 74.59 miles an hour, won the first one; Rodger Ward, averaging 135.857 an hour, won the last one.

Some 200,000 fans will cram the Speedway Monday to watch 33 drivers wheel and duel for glory. The lucky champion will cart off more than $100,000 in purse money and several thousand more in lap loot. Some won't finish, and it may be the last race of their life for some.

Outlar

—Hopkins' Car Was 20 Seconds Too Late

Multi-Millionaire Hulman, who once played end for Yale, shelled out $750,000 for the track in 1945, some $50,000 more than Eddie Rickenbacker had paid for it in 1927. Hulman has since funneled several million bucks into a remodeling project.

You never know what will happen at Indy, and the largest paying audience for a sports event in the U. S. annually turns out to find out.

A year ago the three favorites were the first three across the finish line. Winner Ward, Jim Rathmann and Johnny Thomson had the shortest odds on May 1, and the hottest cars on May 30.

Veteran observers called it one of the most interesting races on record, and hailed Ward as one of the shrewdest drivers ever to take it all.

Ward took the lead on the 85th lap and, with the help of a skilful pit crew and an assist from Lady Luck, he brought the Leader Card home first.

Only 20 seconds separated Ward and Rathmann after 500 miles, but that was time enough to spoil the dream of a lifetime for Atlantian Lindsey Hopkins.

Rathmann, steering the Hopkins Special, hooked up in a stirring duel with Pat Flaherty in the early going. Thomson then grabbed the lead and held it through the 84th lap. Then Ward took command and withstood the challenge from the hard-luck Rathmann.

The race marked the third time that Rathmann has been forced to settle for place money. Maybe this will be the year that he fractures the hex. Or maybe this will be the year that Hopkins gets his name on the winner's list.

—You Can't Play for Higher Stakes

Veteran Tony Bettenhausen will be the man behind the wheel of the Hopkins' car this outing. Bettenhausen, who finished fourth last year, is one of the names mentioned frequently when the favorites are discussed. Ward, Jimmy Bryan, first in 1958 and last in 1959, pole sitter Eddie Sachs, Rathmann and record qualifier Jim Hurtubise are other prominent contenders.

But it takes almost four hours of skill and car and courage and LUCK to produce a winner at Indianapolis. Ward will be attempting to become the first driver since the late Bill Vukovich to repeat at Indy. Vukovich turned the rare trick in 1954; Mauri Rose and Wilbur Shaw were the only others to achieve it. And only Rose of the back-to-back winners at Indy is now alive.

The fun-loving Sachs, who failed to finish and wound up 17th in the result chart last year, volunteered to pick a winner on his visit to Atlanta last Monday. He selected Eddie Sachs.

Asked if he didn't worry about the risk involved on the tracks, Sachs replied that he didn't worry about anything. They say in racing that something always happens to guys who worry. And it often happens to guys who don't.

But it's their life and they lead it and love it. And when the steel wheels start whirling Monday at Indy, 33 lives and thousands of dollars will be on the line.

And more than 200,000 citizens will be on hand to observe the winner and losers.

Patterson Runs, Spars 9 Rounds

NEWTON, Conn. (AP)—Floyd Patterson did 5 miles of roadwork Friday and followed that with nine rounds in the ring as he began four days of intensive workouts for his June 20 return bout with heavyweight champion Ingemar Johansson in the Polo Grounds.

He boxed one round each with Billy Tisdale, Oliver Wilson and Julio Mederos. Then came six rounds of bag punching and calisthenics. Patterson will repeat the program Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

AS SAFETY PRECAUTION

WILSON MOVED TO LAST PLACE FOR INDY '500'

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—A minor change was made Friday in Monday's lineup for the 44th 500-mile auto race, but Eddie Sachs, Jim Rathmann and Rodger Ward will still lead the hazardous start in the chase for a third of a million dollars.

Dempsey Wilson of Hawthorne, Calif., who took over the Bryant Special after Jimmy Daywalt resigned as driver, was moved to last (33rd) place in the starting lineup as a safety precaution. Chief Steward Harlan Fenger explained Wilson is unfamiliar with the car.

Daywalt, from Indianapolis, earned 26th starting position in time trials but quit in dissatisfaction with the car after tuneup runs Wednesday. The former holder of the race 250-mile record said mechanics had readjusted the car to the point where he could not get within five miles an hour of his 143.215 qualifying speed.

"I'm not going to race when I know I can't win," Daywalt said Friday. "I got a different outlook last summer when I was lying in the hospital after getting burned in a wreck at Milwaukee. But I'm not retiring."

Wilson has started only one 500, finishing 15th two years ago. He came to the track this year with the Novi team but time ran out in the rain-interrupted trials before he could make a qualifying run.

Daywalt is the first driver to resign in 13 years.

The 500 draws a crowd upwards of 200,000 without stimulation of illegal betting, but the Indianapolis News published its annual odds quotations Friday. It listed defending champion Ward, Indianapolis, and former AAA national champion Chuck Stevenson, Garden Grove, Calif., as team entry favorites at 5-1.

Ward and Stevenson will drive for Robert C. Wilke of Milwaukee in a pair of Watson racers labeled Leader Card Specials. Ward's car is new; Stevenson has Ward's 1959 winner.

Jim Rathmann of Miami, who has been runner-up three times in 10 Memorial Day races, was listed as 6-1 in another new Watson.

At 8-1 were Johnny Thomson of Boyertown, Pa., who fought a hair-raising battle with Ward early in last year's race; Johnny Boyd, Fresno, Calif.; A. J. Foyt, Houston, and Don Freeland, Indianapolis.

Jimmy Bryan of Phoenix, three times national champion and 1958 Indianapolis winner, was 9-1, which looked a little long considering he is driving a new Ultralight Salih car. George Salih, whose production is about one car every other year, has had two of the last three winners.

Jim Hurtubise of Lennox, Calif., most spectacular rookie at the Speedway since World War II, was listed at 10-1, and Eddie Sachs, Allentown, Pa., who will start in the pole position, at 12-1. Sachs has failed to finish in three previous starts. Troy Ruttman, Dearborn, Mich., 1952 winner, was rated 10-1.

Hurtubise bettered all qualifying records by a wide margin, but a newcomer hasn't won the long grind since George Souder's 1927. He didn't try to qualify on the first day so had to take 23rd place.

THE PITCHER, THE CATCHER, THE GLOVE AND RBI MAN CELEBRATE Wilhelm Pitched, Courtney Used Outsized Mit t, and Marv Breeding Doubled in Two Orioles

Orioles Take 1st On 3-2 Triumph

Yanks Bow to Wilhelm's 'Giant-Sized' Knuckle Ball

NEW YORK (AP)—A new giant-sized catcher's glove helped Clint Courtney avoid passed balls Friday as Hoyt Wilhelm, Baltimore's knuckle ball artist, pitched the Orioles to a 3-2 victory over the New York Yankees.

The victory boosted the first place Orioles a half-game ahead of the Cleveland Indians, who were idled by rain at Detroit. However, the two clubs were tied at .600 in the percentage column. Baltimore had played five more games, and had won three more and lost two more than Cleveland.

Merv Breeding's ground rule double that bounced into the left field stands scored the first two Baltimore runs off Art Ditmar in the fifth. An infield out and Gene Woodling's single scored Breeding with the third run of the inning.

Before Breeding doubled, Brooks Robinson had walked and Ron Hansen was safe when Tony Kubek fumbled his grounder. Both men advanced on Wilhelm's sacrifice and scored on Breeding's hit.

The Yanks finally got to Wilhelm for a run in the sixth when slumping Mickey Mantle (now 0 for 18) walked, took second when Wilhelm balked trying to pick him off, and scored on Roger Maris' single. Yogi Berra ended the threat by bouncing into a double play.

Giants and Cards Top Match On TV's Sports Weekend

The San Francisco Giants, front-runners in the National League, take on St. Louis in the feature game of this week-end's baseball television menu. The game is scheduled for 1:15 p.m. on Ch. 2. Milwaukee plays Cincinnati at 1:15 on Ch. 5, and Chicago meets Kansas City at 3 o'clock on Channel 11.

On Radio, the Crackers try to erase their recent slump in a home series with Birmingham.

BALLOON MITT CURBS WILHELM'S WILDNESS

NEW YORK (AP)—"It's easy to handle," Clint Courtney said Friday after using Baltimore's new balloon glove to catch Knuckleballer Hoyt Wilhelm in the Orioles' 3-2 victory over New York at Yankee Stadium.

"I don't know how many pitches would have jumped past me with a regular glove," Courtney added. "This was the first time I ever caught him. Boy, is he rough to catch. I don't see how anybody ever hits him."

Manager Paul Richards, who thought the glove "worked fine" in its first game trial, suggested the giant size glove after Wilhelm was charged with four wild pitches and his catchers with 11 passed balls in 28 1/2 previous innings this season.

Two of the Baltimore catchers, Gus Triandos and Joe Ginsberg, went into the record books by allowing three passed balls in one inning May 4 and May 10 while trying to handle Wilhelm.

Courtney went through the game Friday without a passed ball and Wilhelm without a wild pitch. Richards, for one, thought the glove made the difference.

"There were several pitches which hit the glove which would not have been stopped by a regular glove," he said. "Of course, the real test will come at night."

The glove is a half-size larger than the ordinary catcher's mitt and weighs a little over two pounds compared to the 1 pound, 10 ounces for the ordinary glove.

It is legal under baseball rules, which say a catcher can wear a glove of "any size, shape or weight."

Manager Casey Stengel of the Yanks pointed to this after the defeat and said the league should pass a rule regarding the size.

Go-for-Broke Bucs Acquire Mizell in Trade for Two

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates Friday night acquired veteran left-handed pitcher Vinegar Bend Mizell from the St. Louis Cardinals for a minor league infielder and a pitcher to be named later. The Pirates also got utility infielder Dick Gray in the four-player, no-cash deal.

The Pirates gave St. Louis the contract of Julian Javier, a second baseman with their Columbus farm in the International League.

The Pirates sent Gray to Columbus as a replacement for Javier.

General Manager Joe L. Brown of the Pirates said he is giving up "one of the most brilliant prospects in the minor leagues" in Javier.

"I'm shooting everything for this year," Brown said.

The pitcher going to St. Louis is expected to be a Pirate farm-hand.

Mizell, with the Cardinals six years, has a 69-70 major league won-loss record. He had a career ERA of 3.68, but is 4.58 this season with a 1-3 record.

Nischwitz Baffles 'Cousin' Crackers

Shoop Homer Margin, 3-2

By CHARLIE ROBERTS
Birmingham's Barons staged a 3-2 victory ball at Ponce de Leon Park Friday night with their favorite cousins, the Crackers, picking up the tab for the entertainment.

The Crackers, their slump showing, made no hit with 1,667 on-lookers as they danced to the five-hit tune of a lefthanded fiddler named Ron Nischwitz.

However, the sterling performance of hard-luck Don Thompson, Atlanta's route-going pitcher, did stir murmurs of admiration from the Ladies' Night crowd that included his parents, visiting from Arlington, Va.

The Cracker southpaw authored a scatter-hit nine-inning, fanned five and walked only four. But his once hit-happy mates could not solve the mystery of Nischwitz' slow-rhythm pitches and he was doomed to his fourth setback without a victory.

Nischwitz, who greased the skids for the Crackers with a five-hit, 5-2 victory in Birmingham last week, struck out just one and walked only two as he altered his credentials to 3-1 and kept the Atlantans on the tobgan.

The Southern Assn.-leading Barons plunged the Crackers, losers seven times in their last eight starts, into sixth place by pecking Thompson for single tallies in the third, seventh and eighth innings.

And it added insult to defeat that the winning blow was struck by a .214-hitting catcher who has belted Atlanta hurling for seven hits in 17 trips. This was Ron Shoop who lashed his second home run over the left-field fence in the eighth, only his 15th in eight previous seasons.

Jim Williams knocked across both tallies for the Crackers, who have been held to five hits or less, and made two runs or less, in five different games within a week.

Williams poked his 11th home run in the fourth inning, tying a 1-1 knot. And in the eighth, after Shoop's homer had given the Barons a 3-1 bulge, Jungle Jim poked-axed a sacrifice fly to place Dick Tracewski. The swift shortstop had doubled to open the inning and claimed third on a ground out.

Nischwitz, one of the better hitting pitchers, started his own victory waltz with a leadoff single in the third. He plodded to second when Andy Madalone was given a free pass, waited two outs then sped home when Stan Palys lined a single to right.

A double by Gail Henley on a 3-2 pitch, an intentional walk to Palys and Bob Micelotta's

ALL-STAR WATER SHOW SCHEDULED

COBB DEDICATES POOL SUNDAY

Special to The Constitution
The Cobb County Recreation Authority will dedicate its Olympic sized swimming pool and spacious new clubhouse Sunday, June 5, at 3 p.m. with an all-star water show, including some of the South's finest swimming and diving stars.

Headlining the array will be spring board and platform diving stars Joel Lenz, of Coral Gables, Fla., Jack Hayes, Ohio State University intercollegiate diving champion, Francis Beck, another interscholastic champion, Marcy Williams, Barbara Weeks and Mike Pitts.

The entire water show will be under the direction of Atlanta's Ed Smyke. During the show, AAU swimming teams from the Atlanta area will make serious bids for existing records on relays and medleys.

The pool, which is "U" shaped, is 164 feet long, in the portion containing the lanes, while the base of the "U" is set aside for diving and other swimming and is 17 feet at its deepest point. A three-laning diving tower, the highest platform 33 feet above water, graces the northern corner of the pool.

The pool contains 8 lanes and is one of the largest in the southeast.

The O. B. Keeler Memorial Golf course, now in the final stages of completion, is being prepared for formal opening on October 9, at which time Sammy Snead and Arnold Palmer have signed contracts to play an 18-hole exhibition along with two ranking women pros, possibly Louise Suggs and Mary Lena Faulk.

Mrs. O. B. Keeler and Atlanta's Bobby Jones will participate in the golf course dedication in October.

The park contains three lakes, including 22-acre Lake Bosteman, the center of other playground activities in addition to golf and swimming. A huge parking lot overlooks this lake, and picnic and outing areas adjoin three sides.

Other facilities to be opened during the summer include hard surfaced and lighted tennis courts, picnic shelters, boat dock facilities, rides, barbecue pits.

Knee Won't Matter, Says Herb Elliott

MODESTO, Calif. (AP)—Australia's world record miler Herb Elliott says a sore knee "won't make any difference" in his race Saturday night against Oregon collegian Dyrol Burleson America's best.

"The doctor told me not to aggravate the knee with heavy workouts this week, so I did only light running," explained Elliott who goes against Burleson and four others in the California Relays at 10:30 p.m., EST.

Elliott said if the conditions are right and the first 800 is fast, the time should be under 4 minutes. The weatherman predicted fair skies for the night. A little perturbed that news of his sore knee got out, Elliott made it clear it wasn't his wish to have any alibi for his performance Saturday night; in fact, he didn't feel any would be warranted.

Elliott, who played 18 holes of golf both Wednesday and Thursday, passed up golf Friday in order to visit an oil company laboratory near Modesto. He works for the oil company in Australia and through a company scholarship, will enroll at Cambridge next year.

There'll be a host of top performers in action including shot putters Bill Nieder and Parry O'Brien, Don Styrone of Northeast Louisiana who smashed the world record for the 220-yard low hurdles with a time of 21.9, pole vaulter J. D. Martin who has gone higher than the world mark of 15-8 1/2, and sprinter Ray Norton who three times has equalled the world record of 9.3 seconds.

'Tip' Helps Win
For Thieson DuoSeeded Doubles Teams Roll
In City Tennis Tournament

By AL THOMY

Traylor Thieson and Grant Wilmer can thank a helpful bit of advice for their doubles victory in the City Tennis tournament at Betsy Grant center Friday afternoon.

Seeded No. 3, Thieson and Wilmer were on the verge of elimination Thursday in their match with youngsters Bob Hardcastle and Speed Howell. The score was locked up (6-8, 8-6) and the two Hs were pressing for victory when darkness and wet courts forced a delay to Friday.

It was another story on Friday as Thieson and Wilmer handily ran out their opponents, 6-2.

A bit of instruction by pro Jack Rodgers enabled Thieson and Wilmer an escape from their revved-up foes.

Thieson asked what was wrong with his game, and Rodgers told him he was a slow starter and did not warm up properly.

So Thieson did his warming up before Friday's set, and it paid victory dividends.

"That's the best I've ever seen Traylor play," said partner Wilmer.

"I felt ready for the first time in quite a while when I took the court," explained Thieson. "That little warmup session did it."

The Nos. 1 and 2 doubles combinations breezed without too much trouble. Top-ranked Ned Neely and Harry Thompson, Southeastern Conference champions from Georgia Tech, raced by seniors Tom Bird and Hank Crawford, 6-3, 8-6, and second-seeded Betsy Grant and Larry Shippey overpowered Pierre Howard and son, 6-0, 6-2.

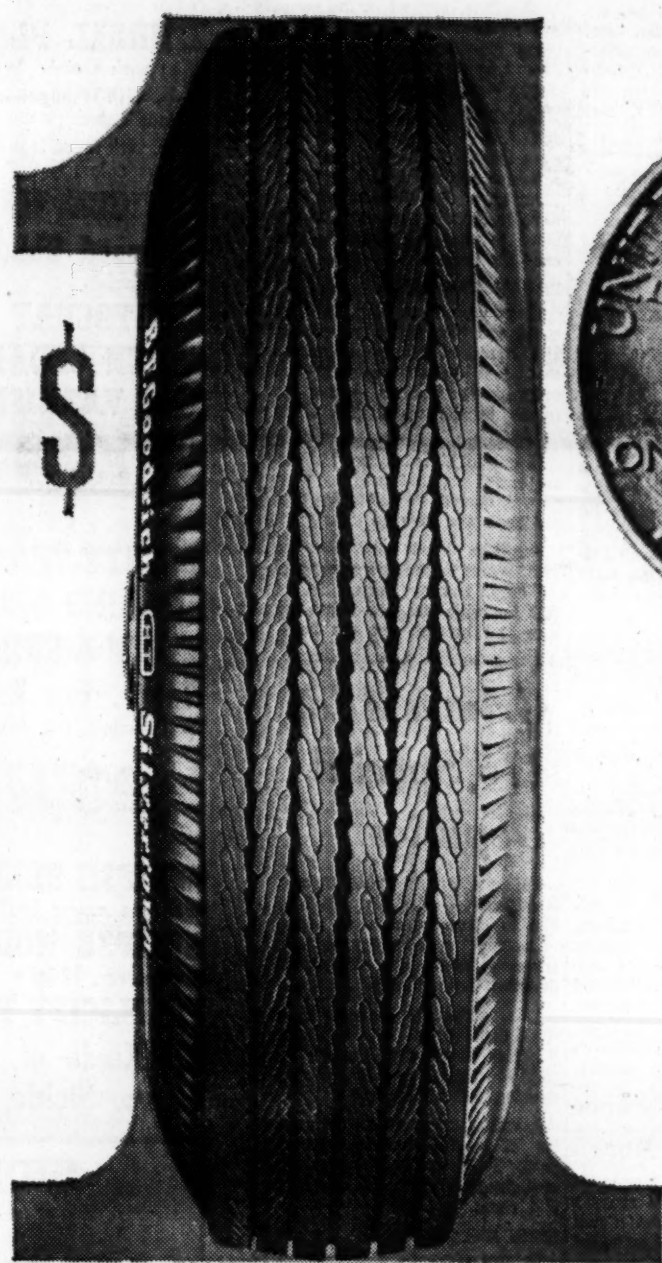

The two top women's doubles teams also advanced. Betty Joe Braselton and Inez Long, No. 1, stopped Pinkle and Heide Ager, 6-2, 6-1, and Louise Fowler and Natalie Cohen beat Peggie Rice and Hope Moore, 5-7, 6-2, 6-4.

Men's singles features Saturday's semis, with Neely clashing with teammate Thompson and Shippey scrapping Speed Howell. With the exception of second-ranked Lindsey Hopkins, beaten by Howell in an upset, they are seeded in that order.

Miss Braselton meets Dana Lenhan and Long opposes Lay in the women's semis.

FRIDAY'S RESULTS
Senior Men's Singles: Hank Crawford d. Collier, 6-3, 7-5.
Men's Doubles: Grant Wilmer-Traylor Thieson d. Bob Hardcastle-Speed Howell, 6-8, 8-6, 6-2; Ned Neely-Harry Thompson d. Tom Bird-Hank Crawford, 6-3, 8-6, 6-2.
Women's Doubles: Louise Fowler-Natalie Cohen d. Peggy Rice-Hope Moore, 5-7, 6-2, 6-4; Betty Joe Braselton-Inez Long d. Ager, 6-2, 6-1.
Senior Doubles: Larry Shippey-Glen Dudley d. Vince Conner-G. A. York, 6-3, 6-0; Reg Egoe-Nat Collins d. Bird-Crawford, 6-3, 8-6.
Mixed Doubles: Braselton-Sonny Mullis d. Bird-Hope, 6-2, 6-1; Lay-Smith d. Al Ficklerman-Chapin, 6-4, 6-3; Fowler-Thieson d. Dana Lenhan-Deane Pendley.

SATURDAY'S SCHEDULE
10:30: Fowler-Thieson vs. Pendley-Lenhan, continued.
11:00 a.m.: Larry Shippey vs. Speed Howell; Betty Joe Braselton vs. Dana Lenhan.

NEW B.F. GOODRICH "HT" SILVERTOWN

Gives you the safety features of some tires twice its price.

The brand-new B.F. Goodrich "HT" Silvertown puts more rubber where the wear is—on the outside ribs. That means better traction, greater stability at high speeds, greater protection against bruise blowouts. Better performance all around than some tires costing two times as much.

Outwears two sets of "bargain" tires.

The "HT" delivers more than double the mileage of so-called "bargain" tires. Safer, worry-free mileage... and more enjoyable mileage, too. For the "HT" is made with a new "Quiet Rubber" that takes the hum out of highways, the squeal out of corners and effectively cushions road bumps.

Here's why the "HT" doubles your tire dollar.

Over a rugged nylon body is the "HT's" unique tread—13% wider, 6% deeper than regular tires. Under normal driving, even when 50% worn, the "HT" gives you greater safety than new "bargain" tires. Your tire dollar works twice as hard—delivers a bonus in mileage, comfort and safety.

Stop at the sign of the smiling tire.

Jackson First
In Peach Race

Jack Jackson started in 12th position, but made up ground in a hurry to win the 30-lap sportsman feature race at the Peach Bowl Friday night.

Gerald Dukes, who led for 24 laps, was second. Newcomer Robert Morris, who brought a flashy new car to the Bowl, was third and Ralph Smith, who started 11th, fourth.

A spinout by Jimmy Norton on the second lap forced a restart of the race, attended by approximately 1,000.

First Heat (10 laps): 1—Robert Morris, 2—Wally Cochrane, 3—Gerald Dukes.
Second Heat (10 laps): 1—Sam Colvin, 2—Jack Jackson, 3—Ralph Smith.
Third Heat (10 laps): 1—Ralph Smith, 2—Jack Jackson, 3—Robert Morris.
Fourth Heat (10 laps): 1—Chester Barron, 2—Ralph Carr, 3—Jimmy Norton.
Feature (25 laps): 1—Jack Jackson, 2—Gerald Dukes, 3—Robert Morris, 4—Ralph Smith.

Hearn Conducts Batting Clinic

A Home Run Derby—for batters 8-13 years of age—will be held Saturday at 2555 Stewart Ave., SW, and the man in charge will be former New York pitcher Jim Hearn.

Hearn will offer instruction on batting stance and swing from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. in a program patterned on the Home Run Derby for major league stars on WAGA-TV, sponsor of the clinic.

There'll be caps for young hitters and cloth patches for those who swing and connect for a hit.

TV Tonight

Dick Clark
Gives Jeanne
Her Chance

By the TV SCOUT

7:30-8 (Ch. 11)—There are the usual five guests and seven songs on The Dick Clark Show Saturday.

The singers are LaVern Baker, Jeanne Black, Jimmy Jones, Johnny Tillotson and Harold Dorman. Most interesting is Miss Black. This is her first big network break.

7:30-8:30 (Ch. 5)—The network is keeping quiet about it but Saturday's Perry Mason offering brings back William Talman as DA Hamilton Burger. This is the first of four new shows, with Talman in his old spot, which were filmed before his troubles and then pulled out. Now they've been reinstated.

8-8:30 (Ch. 11)—There's a quick look at one of the world's loveliest islands, Jamaica, on John Gunther's High Road Saturday. The first half of the show, a tourist's-eye view, is hampered by the narration of Herb Shriver, who throws in some inappropriate gags.

8:30-9 (Ch. 2)—The emphasis is more on science than fiction on The Man and The Challenge Saturday. Our hero gets mixed up with a hard-working type who is out to find a way to tell, from the ground, when spacebound men are too exhausted to function well. Along the way, we learn why women can stand to wear nylons in the winter.

9-9:30 (Ch. 5)—Mr. Lucky gets back into its earlier groove a bit with a villain who is a superman-beatnik. He's also a maniac, and his special hatred is blondes.

9:30-10 (Ch. 5)—Richard Boone turns director with Have Gun, Will Travel, and it looks as professional as any of them.

Georgia's Leaders
Look at Segregation

The solution to Georgia's mounting school crisis must come from the General Assembly, Gov. Vandiver declared Friday night in a nationwide television program entitled: Who Speaks for the South.

The hour-long special CBS-TV report moderated by Edward R. Murrow also included film clips of the Sibley School Committee hearings in Moultrie and Atlanta, interviews with Georgians of both races, and portions of segregationist and HOPE meetings.

A major participant in the program was Ralph McGill, Pulitzer Prize winning editor of the Constitution.

Atlanta Mayor William B. Hartsfield also participated in the program.

Gov. Vandiver said he foresees nothing but "bad consequences" if Atlanta's schools are integrated.

"Certainly where integration is forced," he said, "a lot of difficulties ensue."

The chief executive said Georgians fear that if the schools are desegregated "blackboard jungle" type of conditions will prevail.

Mayor Hartsfield said that "the old fashioned crowd" is still in control of Georgia's politics and is responsible for most of the antagonism against mixing the races.

Editor McGill said that there "almost certainly will be agitation and attempts at agitation" if Atlanta's schools are integrated in the fall of 1961.

He said, however, that Atlanta has a "very fine mayor, a wonderful chief of police, a fine staff of police which will do their duty" to preserve law and order if trouble crops up.

In opening the program, Murrow said, "No one man can speak for the South, for Southerners, like other Americans, speak with many voices."

The film strips of the Sibley Committee's hearings in Moultrie and Atlanta featured a number of ministers, ardent segregationists, Negro citizens, and various civic and business leaders from both cities.

State Democratic Party Chairman James Gray, Gov. Vandiver's executive secretary, Peter Zack Geer, and Augusta political leader Roy Harris were filmed while addressing a recent segregationist rally in Atlanta.

2 Arrested
In Break-Ins
At Schools

Two East Point men were arrested Friday on two counts of burglary and one count of larceny in connection with school break-ins, police reported.

They were listed as James Reid Parham, 35, of a Dorsey avenue, East Point, address, and Jack Wesley Quinn, 27, of 422 Jones Ave., East Point. They were placed under $2,200 bonds each, $2,000 on burglary charges and $200 for larceny.

Detectives R. W. Davidson and E. S. Helms said Parham told them he was a son of J. R. Parham, an assistant attorney general of Georgia.

The two were taken into custody early Friday at O'Keeffe High School. Davidson and Helms said they heard a night burglar alarm at the school ringing and saw a small, imported auto parked at the rear of the school.

Quinn, a welder, got out of the car and attempted to run but was apprehended by Helms, detectives said. They added Parham was apprehended as he walked around the building toward the car.

Parham was quoted that he had gone inside the school searching for a rest room. Detectives said they found two doors had been forced open. They added Parham later told them he entered the school and later admitted entering Roosevelt High School.

Aidmore Launching
$500,000 Expansion

A half-million-dollar expansion program designed to make the Aidmore Children's Hospital "the finest of its type in the South" will be launched this summer.

That was the word Friday from Robert G. Pruitt, board chairman of the crippled children's hospital which is sponsored by the Georgia Elks Association.

In other business, the Elks elected George C. Imes Jr. of Griffin to succeed Jack T. Lester of Columbus in the state presidency.

Other new officers are Edward A. Hester, Savannah, executive vice president at large; Roderick M. McDuffie, East Point, secretary-treasurer; Henry Mays, Cartersville, tiler, and four regional vice presidents—Joseph Fleming, Elberton; Arthur Wink, Dalton; W. H. Shuman Jr., Vidalia, and Daniel Tidwell, Macon.

Negro Wins
Death Stay
In Rape Case

REIDSVILLE—A court order stayed the execution of a 25-year-old Augusta Negro, Nathaniel Johnson, two hours before he was to have gone to his death Friday in the state prison on electric chair.

Johnson, convicted of raping a white nurse's aide employed at the Talmadge Memorial Hospital in Augusta, was to have been electrocuted between 10 and 11 a.m.

City Court Judge R. L. Carr signed a writ of habeas corpus halting the execution around 8:30 a.m.

The writ was brought by Attorney R. W. Barron of Augusta, alleging the Negro is illegally detained in violation of his constitutional rights. It was directed at prison Warden R. P. Balkcom Jr., and Carr ordered Balkcom to appear before him Thursday, June 2, with the state's answer.

Thomasville Escapee
Gets 2 Years More

THOMASVILLE—A 27-year-old Thomas County stockade escapee will pay for an hour and a half of freedom with a two-year added sentence.

Deputy Sheriff C. A. Rehbert identified the prisoner as Gene Tillman of Thomasville. The deputy said Tillman, a trusty, drove away late Thursday night in a stockade truck to visit his parents.

He was spotted and captured near a restaurant. The convict would have been eligible for parole next year.

Boy, 10,
Drowns in Decatur

A 10-year-old Decatur boy drowned in a private lake Friday despite efforts of a swimming companion to save him, police said.

He was Marvin Douglas Roberson, a son of Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Roberson of 1985 Capri Dr., Decatur. His father is an Atlanta policeman assigned to the traffic court contempt division.

ARRIVES AT SCENE

Patrolman Roberson, at work at the time, arrived at the scene just as the body of his son was being placed in an ambulance. The tragedy occurred at the Buena Vista lake on McAfee road.

DeKalb Detectives B. S. Ivey and J. W. Crumpton said they were told the Roberson youth and a companion, Michael Lee Hamilton, 12, of 2164 Rockhaven Cir., were wading in the lake and decided to attempt to reach a raft near the center.

BEGAN SWIMMING

They waded as far as they could and then began swimming. The Hamilton youth was quoted that just before reaching the raft his companion began to splash in the water and shout for help.

"I got to him, but he grabbed me and I couldn't hold us up," he was quoted. "I got to the raft and then saw him go down."

Hamilton dived back into the lake, swam to the shore and ran for help. Tommy Carter, 20, of 1982 Lakeside Dr., dived into the lake and brought out the body.

Grimes Adds
175 Special
Deputies

Fulton Sheriff T. Ralph Grimes, who pledged after his 1956 election to clear his rolls of purely "honorary" special deputies, has sworn in more than 175 special deputies since Jan. 1.

This, according to records on file in the office of the Fulton Superior Court clerk, brings the total of special deputies now commissioned to almost 2,000.

Asked to comment on the number of special deputies, Grimes said, "I'd have 3,000 if I could get enough good men. I'd double it if I could."

SEEN NECESSARY

Grimes contends a large number of special deputies—he claims 1,966 are sworn in—are necessary to law enforcement here. "They are subject to call in case of any emergency," he said.

"Some day," he added, "I may need them."

There were more than 2,000 special deputies on file in 1956 when Grimes pledged to grant special deputy commissions "only to those men who are qualified and whose jobs warrant possession of badge and gun."

GUARDS INCLUDED

He said this specifically referred to "night watchmen, guards, private detectives, state avenue agents, etc."

A check of the addresses filed with the clerk showed they included Springfield, Mo., Nashville, Tenn., Athens, Monroe, Douglasville and Forest Park.

WHY PAY MORE?

Applicant's Appearance Counts A Great Deal at a Job Interview

No matter how high you hope to soar in the business world your chances of starting below the bottom rung on a summer apprenticeship are practically guaranteed if you put forth the right appearance.

Most personnel people pay close attention to the condition of an applicant's appearance—and that includes the hands and nails.

Long nails rate low on the list of fingers employers like to see hovering over one of their typewriters. And the same is true of dirty nails, bitten or neglected nails and rough, chapped knuckles.

File your nails fairly short—no longer than one eighth of an inch at their highest point, say the beauty experts—and shape them into ovals. If you prefer a polish, choose a natural shade or a pale pink. Hands that look both pretty and efficient can mean the difference between success and disappointment at the end of your job interview.

In a city the size of Atlanta there will probably be two to 20 qualified applicants for every summer job open to students. This means that those first impressions will count, but big. Busy employers haven't the time to dig down below a sloppy appearance to see that industrious gem below. They have to accept you at face value alone.

A neat, well-assembled appearance will work in your favor. Don't be too casual with your dress, but don't look like a piece of party cake either. Choose a suit or simple-cut dress.

For the girls, stockings, heels and gloves are a must. A hat can be worn if you feel comfortable underneath one.

For the boys a dress shirt, tie and coat are must items. Check those shoes for a brilliant shine too.

Cute Little Shoes May Get You On Wrong Foot

Those cute little shoes that leave your foot as free as a bird may get you off on the wrong foot this summer.

Dazzled by color, design and latest fads and fancies, teenagers—particularly girls—frequently mistreat their feet simply to keep up with the latest in foot wear.

Podiatrists (better known as foot doctors) offer the teenage shoe shoppers this advice:

Flats are best for all-day wear. For special occasions a mid-heel is best but not spikes. Nothing is less graceful than a well dressed teen-ager wobbling like a tight-rope walker on high heels. Wearing high heels before the foot is fully matured is only asking for a teetering and rolling gait.

Sneakers belong on the gym floor. And beach shoes should be worn only on sand where the foot doesn't need the same sort of support as on concrete pavements, wooden floors or even grassy lawns.

Check shoe sizes at least once each season, advise doctors. Fast-growing teen-agers can shoot a full size in less than three months, especially during the summer months. Outgrown shoes will only leave a teen-ager with bumps, blisters, baby bunions and ingrowing toenails.

Like any article of clothing shoes should never be borrowed. A clumsy dance partner may stomp your foot and cost you a friend as well as her favorite shoes.

DIETERS SHOULD AVOID THE SODA FOUNTAIN SET
 Julie Barnes, a Dieter, Watches Sister Rannie Dig Into a Split

STARVATION DIETS WEAKEN RESOLUTION
 Julie Breaks Down, Tries To Snitch a Bite

Weighty Problems Starve Teen-agers

Starvation Diets Among Teens Lead to Physical Disorders

While Dad is fighting the middle-age spread and Mom is worried about her expanding waistline the teen-agers in the house are starving themselves.

Starvation diets among teen-agers have become the fad. Teen-age girls in Atlanta report that they get together and make bets with each other as to who can lose the most weight in a certain time limit—usually three weeks. The girl that loses the bet has to give the other one something she really wants. This gift is usually a pair of madras shorts—the latest rage for summer—or some other article of clothing.

However, what all teen-agers fail to realize is that nobody really wins the bet. Both of them are losers.

Starvation diets lead to serious deficiencies in the consumption of the foods considered essential to health and growth. Because teen-age girls "diet," they eat less of the foods they need than boys do. They have the poorest diet in the country's population, according to recent studies.

TEXAS SURVEY

A Texas survey revealed that three out of four high school girls get less than 75 per cent of the dairy products they need; 85 per cent get less than 75 per cent of the meat they need; 95 per cent practically never touch iron-yielding foods, and half don't get enough eggs. This Texas study is typical of any state. The study confirms that girls are anemic.

Julie Barnes, a 16-year-old student at Northside High School, says she has started 18 of these starvation diets this year. She and other girls have gone at this do-it-yourself dieting vigorously, making bets among themselves and running for the scales every spare minute to check their progress. Along with the diet Julie tried an exercise or two occasionally.

TYPICAL REASONS

Her reasons for dieting are typical of any other teen-ager—in their own eyes they are fat, fat, fat. Girls think their boy friends want a slim little trick to court so they go all out to meet what they think is the boy's ideal.

Girls whose parents object to these starvation diets report they eat at home—as little as they can get by with—but "starve" themselves at lunch time at school and away from home.

For a decade now 4-H Clubs, Girl Scouts, hygiene, biology and home economics teachers have been trying to re-educate girls. They have taught, warned and actually scared a few.

The things they have tried to teach girls are these:

Starvation diets and improper eating habits will lead to anemia, tuberculosis, postural and bone defects and even sterility.

Here's Basic Calorie Need

For the calorie counting teens here's the basic daily calorie needs for normal growth according to nutritional experts:

From 13-15 years of age—about 30 calories per pound of body weight.

From 16-20 years of age—active boys should have 35 calories per pound and girls 25 calories per pound. Moderately active boys—27 calories per pound and girls 20 calories per pound. Inactive boys—18 calories per pound and girls 17 calories per pound.

An additional 500 to 1,000 calories daily are needed for the underweight teen-ager.

The girl who is starving herself this very minute should stop and ask herself: If my system of cutting calories and weight works, why am I always at it?

Teen-agers who try these fast diets find that they are so strenuous they can't stick to them. That's why it takes 18 or more attempts a year. They feel so deprived by the rigors they have been through that they make up for suffering by splurging on the high-calorie sweets, starches and fats they've gone without, say nutritionists.

Goody Goodies Are Still Out Of the Physician's Diet Plan

Swing up onto a stool at any soda fountain any afternoon after school and look who's eating all those sweet, goody goodies.

Most of the banana splits, marshmallow sundaes and hot fudge treats are being shoved into the fat little mouths of chubby or just plain fat teen-agers.

Most of these hefty indulgers will shrug their shoulders and say they have glandular trouble because their attempts at calorie counting have proved unsuccessful. They may have tried an egg diet, a raw carrot diet (guaranteed, it's said, to take off 15 pounds in a week) and lost nothing but their taste for eggs and carrots.

Without consulting a doctor they figure they must be one of those hopelessly fat people with glandular trouble and must learn to live with their fat selves.

To this, doctors say pooh.

When several members of the same family are noticeably stout it might seem that this situation is either inherited or those glands again.

Medical men have taken a dim view of this defeatist type of self-diagnosis and are attempting to educate the public to understand that over-eating and inactivity are primary causes of obesity.

Parents who are big eaters and big people often encourage their children to follow suit. But if the overweight teen-ager would take a more fighting attitude toward his or her problem (such as avoiding the soda fountain completely) their chances of being slender would almost be assured.

To begin with, have a complete physical check-up. Your doctor will be able to tell you whether or not your glands are functioning properly and he'll give you a medically approved diet supplemented with vitamins to keep you strong and healthy during this weight battle.

Don't expect to lose dozens of pounds in the first few weeks. The best diets are the slow ones that last and last and last. But if you can control your growling stomach for the first three months without yielding to temptation you'll make it through the campaign.

Get-thin-quick diets aren't for you. You may experience a sudden drop in weight after the first 10 days but this will be mostly water loss and purely temporary. You'd probably put it on again twice as fast as you took it off, with a pound or two to spare.

The beginning is always the hardest but you'll get through the ordeal if you don't allow your mind to dwell morbidly on food in its starchiest, most succulent form.

Try to avoid situations that could push you into such places as a room filled with banana split eaters. Stay away from restaurants and snack bars and by all means avoid the kitchen.

Excuse yourself from the table before dessert is served or if the family meal is to be one of those irresistible dinners ask to have your little morsels of food on a tray away from the temptation.

Get some exercise every day, even if it's only a brisk sprint around the block. Housework and yardwork never hurt a teen-ager. Stretching, bending and scrubbing can be better than a workout in a gym.

Whenever you're driven just about "buggy" with a diabolic craving to go on a caloric binge, stop to think about what it will cost. Half an hour of wild eating is a high price to pay for all those days of sacrifices.

Nothing is greater than to realize one day that your clothes all need taking in; that your waist line is decreasing and that you are beginning to look like a normal teen-ager again.

Take Her Dining in High Style

There's quite a difference in the drive-in hamburger house and the world's most elegant restaurant. And when you scrape together enough savings to treat your date to the best in cuisine, you want to do it with all the finesse you can muster.

It's customary for you to ask your date what she would like. If money is no object, you let her ponder over the expensive dishes, but chances are it is. So in this case you suggest several foods in your price range and hope to goodness she doesn't yearn for the live Maine lobster or big sirloin.

Menus in the more sophisticated restaurants may look as though they were written in Latin in the first time you encounter them but translation is not impossible if you know the key words:

"A la carte" means that each item on the menu is individually priced; "table d'hôte" means that the price listed covers the entire meal. "Hors d'oeuvres" are appetizers; "entree" is the main dish; and "démittasse" is French for a half cup—a small after dinner cup of strong coffee, drunk without cream or sugar.

When there are dishes listed that are completely foreign to you there is no reason why you shouldn't politely ask the waiter to describe the dish to you.

If the big spread on silverware confuses you, start with the fork and spoon away from your plate and work toward the plate with each course.

Fifteen per cent of the check is a customary tip. If your date is the polite miss you want her to be, she will tell you how much she enjoyed going there and how delicious the food was. Even if it seemed like the Greasy Spoon, we hope she will show her appreciation for your efforts.

ON THE SPOT Father Takes Marcy's Advice; Daughter Takes 'Modern' Stand

By MARCY MANNERS

DEAR MISS MANNERS:

I am referring to your column on the 14th of May about girls being too young to date at 15. I would like very much to give my point on the subject because I am 15! Miss Manners, I don't think what you said was very fair.

I have read a few books on dating and they think 15 is the right age to date. Double-dating is fun, but there is going to be sometimes when you can't find anyone to double with.

If you only knew what I've been going through to date and that my father reads that column of yours, why don't you think before you write an answer?

Maybe in your time they didn't date at 15. But this is 1960, not 1930! What do you want to do—deprive us of a youthful time?

I've heard that the girls that start dating at a late stage are the ones that get in trouble more than the girls that date early. I am from a Christian home and we do things together. If you act like a good girl or boy should and know right from wrong—what's wrong with dating?

The answer in your column is not helping me or anyone that can date. I feel very sorry for Sue. Her parents must not understand today's youth. Thank you.

Very Disappointed.

DEAR VERY DISAPPOINTED:

You—and your father—should reread my May 14 column. It was an attempt to help a girl whose problem is not exactly the same as yours. She is not allowed to date at all. I was trying to help her find a way; I must not think exactly as you seem to believe.

I admit, however, that I believe young people grow up too fast for their own happiness. Unfortunately, you probably will not be able to see this for a few years.

We want you to be safe and happy, and we are sometimes overprotective. Yet we probably are not as much so as young people wish us to think.

Young people wish us to trust them—and so we should until we have reason not to do so. Yet those same young people seem to find it difficult to trust their parents' judgment. We need more understanding by young people and parents. That is the reason I was delighted to get your letter.

This Freckling Season Adds Charm To the Face

The freckling season is beginning and while you may be sensitive about these little specks that pop out, remember they add charm to the face.

Blondes and redheads are more apt to freckle than brunettes. However, some families have a special predisposition to freckles.

Freckling is a condition caused by an abnormal concentration of pigmentation of the skin. This is due to sensitivity to the ultraviolet rays of the sun.

People that freckle are more susceptible to sunburn. There is usually a spurt in the number of freckles at puberty, but they soon begin to diminish.

Straw beach hats with big brims and scientifically compounded lotions help to protect persons against freckling. Of course the best preventive is to stay out of the direct sunlight. But this is next to impossible when the crowd decides to have a beach party.

In most cases it is best to leave freckles alone. One girl disliked her speckled face so much that she tried to scratch them off her nose—unsuccessfully.

A photographer met her and became so fascinated by her freckled face and titian hair that he took 150 pictures of her. A motion picture company saw these pictures and gave her a successful screen test.

This 'Angel' Spreads Wings Over the State

By BETTY CARROLLTON

The Gracewood "angel" has spread its wings statewide to offer more protection for Georgia's mentally afflicted children. The cardboard replicas have become miniature symbols of hope for youngsters at Gracewood School for the mentally retarded.

The sale of the first Gracewood angel, to benefit the school, was launched by the Marietta Woman's Club. Last year, it was adopted as a statewide project by the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, with a trophy being offered to the community organization for outstanding work on the program.

The first woman's organization to receive the statue of the Gracewood Angel, a revolving award to the club contributing the most each year, was the Athens Junior Woman's Club. The group not only sponsored a program to inform the public of the work being done at Gracewood, its needs and services, but launched a series of activities that netted nearly $250 for the institution.

The angelic statue is presented annually by the Marietta Woman's Club in honor of little Judy McCamy, daughter of a past president, Mrs. Roy McCamy. Judy, a patient at Gracewood, and her mother inspired the idea of the woman's club work in behalf of the institution.

"The day I took Judy to Gracewood," Mrs. McCamy recalled, "I saw the children walking to and fro along the campus, and noticed that most of them could be helped in so many, many ways."

Heart sick because there was no hope for improvement in Judy's condition, Mr. and Mrs. McCamy found compensation for their personal sorrow in efforts to help other mentally-afflicted children.

"I came away from the school with a lost feeling that first day," Mrs. McCamy recalled, "searching for something to do for these children. They are no less precious because they are mentally ill."

"I knew Judy could never benefit from anything I might do. She suffered a brain injury at birth; specialist after specialist told us there was no help for her. But of the 1,200 then at Gracewood—that was five years ago—I felt there were many that could be helped."

Mrs. McCamy began contacting clubwomen and neighbors, businessmen and civic leaders, asking their help in launching projects beneficial to the children at the school.

"People were eager to help," she praised, "and the response made my spirit soar, gave me confidence to continue those efforts."

Businessmen contributed money for playground equipment, a fashion shop owner donated new clothing and cuddly toys. Teen-agers, too, played an important role.

The Marietta mother discussed the subject with Y-Teens at Marietta High School who have become "the missionaries in the fields, working for the youngsters at Gracewood." The success of Mrs. McCamy's efforts stimulated the interest of members of the Marietta Woman's Club, who adopted aid to Gracewood as their primary project. They launched the project by selling the miniature angels, made of construction paper, designed by Mrs. Richard Stewart. For five years, money derived from sales in the Marietta area went to purchase additional furniture, playground equipment and education aids for students at Gracewood.

Then, with the cooperation of Mrs. Bruce Schaffer, Toccoa, mental health chairman of the Georgia Federation, the sale of the Gracewood Angels was approved as a statewide project of the women's organization.

During the first year, the Athens Junior Woman's Club led the state's clubwomen in their campaign to aid the school, winning the Gracewood Angel statuette as a tribute to their achievements, and a symbol of hope for the children.

The School Lunch Program Provides a Balanced Diet

By PATRICIA DEATON
Constitution Food Editor

Possibly the best and one sure way to have children eating the right diet, is to place a well planned meal before them. The best place for this practice, of course, is in the home and the next best is at school.

The government has developed a program known as the National School Lunch Program (not to be confused with just school lunch.) The National program safeguards child health throughout the nation, at the same time building the agricultural market.

At the 14th annual joint conference of the United States Department of Agriculture and Southeastern States School Lunch officials this past week,

Mr. Chester Freeman of Washington discussed the school lunch program and the plentiful foods connected with it.

Mr. Freeman is notified in advance of market difficulties and his job, then, is to promote plentiful food commodities.

When prices are lowered because the supplies become too great, the economic problem is solved partly through promotion and one method of promotion is to send a list of the commodities and prices to school lunch directors all over the nation.

LOW COST
The directors will want to take advantage of some of these commodities so that the low cost of school lunches can be maintained. These foods bought locally, will benefit the agricultural market.

In the food distribution program, an annual national budget of $110,000,000 is set aside for the school lunch program. This amount is apportioned to each state, depending upon the degree of its school lunch participation. Part of this amount is set aside for foods that surveys show are deficient in the average child's diet.

Supplementing the budget, a donation of commodities is in constant supply. These, primarily, are wheat flour, corn meal, dry milk, butter and dried eggs.

Georgia's school districts spend approximately $17,000,000 annually with local markets for school lunch foods.

STRESSING NUTRITION
Mr. Martin Garber, director of the food distribution program, feels that teachers are becoming more concerned with nutrition. "They are stressing the importance of a good diet for children," he stated.

The pattern for a type A lunch is the guide to nutritious lunches. The simple framework of this pattern includes 1/4 pint of milk, 2-ounce servings of protein food, 3/4 cup of vegetables and fruits, 1 slice of serving of bread and 2 teaspoons of butter or margarine.

This type of program can both improve the child's food habits and furnish an adequate school lunch which has an important effect on a child's mental ability.

Glenridge Club To Entertain At Luau

Members of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Glenridge Forest Civic Club will entertain at a Luau buffet supper Saturday evening, May 28, at the clubhouse on Glenforest road.

Guests will wear native costumes and the most authentic will be awarded a prize. A feature of the program will be a floor show featuring members from "South Pacific."

Adding a colorful beauty note to the affair will be a boat filled with flowers which will float up and down the swimming pool.

Mrs. Grant Baze is the president of the auxiliary and Mrs. Edward C. Lowe Jr. is chairman of ways and means.

Eight Northside Graduates Enjoy Week of Fun at Daytona Beach

With their diplomas from Northside High School safely in hand, eight "sweet girl graduates" took off bright and early yesterday morning for a much needed rest at Daytona Beach.

Mrs. Carl Ball and Mrs. Ward Rosebush are chaperoning the group which includes their daughters, Lana Ball and Mary Rosebush, Helen Loyless, Gail Horton, Jody Cooper, Nancy Thompson, Sally Anger and Catherine Brannon.

The girls are guests at Safari on the beach for a week of swimming, fun and relaxation. The trip was a graduation gift for most of the party.

INVITATIONS HAVE been received in Atlanta to the marriage of Judith Lynn Volkman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Volkman of Larchmont, N.Y., to Hoke Smith Simpson Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Hoke Smith Simpson of Larchmont.

The ceremony takes place at 4:30 o'clock on Saturday, June 18, at the Larchmont Avenue Church in Larchmont, with a reception at the Larchmont Yacht Club.

The future bridegroom is well known here. His mother is the former Suzanne Memminger, daughter of the late Dr. W. W. Memminger, rector of All Saints Church here for many years, and the late Mrs. Memminger. His father, who is director of business for Columbia University, is the grandson of the late Sen. Hoke Smith of Atlanta.

ALMOST THE ONLY part of the world Mrs. Carlos Mason has not seen is that portion of Europe embracing Finland, Russia and Poland. So on Saturday, June 4, she will join a party in New York to fly by jet to Copenhagen and thence to Helsinki.

After a tour of Finland, she will spend 10 days in Russia, visiting Leningrad and Moscow in addition to several smaller cities. Following a visit to Poland, she will return home the last of June.

Mrs. Mason is not sure whether this is her seventh or eighth trip across the Atlantic. Last year she made a trip completely around the world.

DEPARTING LAST Saturday for Europe was Mrs. J. Robert Eubanks who will be joined today in Frankfurt, Germany, by her elder son, Gary. They will travel through Switzerland, France and England, and will be extensively entertained in London where they will participate in the commemoration of the signing of the "Great Charta" at Runnymede.

Mrs. Eubanks and Gary will sail from Scotland on the Statendam July 13. Mr. Eubanks and his younger son, Marshall, will meet them in New York, after which Mr. Eubanks will continue on to Canada for some hunting in the Yukon territory, while Mrs. Eubanks and her sons return to Atlanta.

MRS. JULIAN LANE, regent-at-large of the Dames of the Magna Charta, is another who will have a prominent part in the commemoration at Runnymede on June 15. She leaves for England at an early date.

THE SON BORN May 21 at Georgia Baptist Hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Samuel C. Dinkins III has been named Samuel Callaway IV. Mrs. Dinkins is the former Marilyn Holloway.

MRS. JASPER DOLVIN entertains at supper tonight at her Roswell home in honor of Anne Ezzard and Thomas Eskew who will be married on June 11.

Mrs. William Crowe Jr. of Roswell will give the bridesmaids' luncheon on June 10, and that evening Mr. Eskew's parents, the John W. Eskews Sr. of Lebanon, Tenn., entertain at supper at Yohannon's after the rehearsal.

MARK MANNIS, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Mannis and a student at Marist, leaves today for Mobile to be guest soloist for the Hadassah Donor Dinner.

Cancer Isn't Always A Painful Illness

By BARBARA BRIGHT

Cancer, contrary to the general opinion of the layman, is not necessarily a painful disease. Nor does treatment of terminal cancer arbitrarily require narcotics to keep the patient comfortable.

These misconceptions of the public about cancer can lead to harmful consequences, cancer specialists here agree.

"The old attitude about cancer was that if the patient had cancer it was hopeless anyway, so just throw the medicine cabinet at him," Dr. Elliott Scarborough, head of professional services at Emory University Hospital said.

"But since there is hope for cancer and the disease can now be cured, this is no longer true," he explained.

GREAT MAJORITY

Dr. Enoch Callaway, director of the West Georgia Cancer Clinic and a regional director of the American Cancer Society, pointed out in a wire service release that "The great majority of patients who have cancer and die from cancer do so without suffering any considerable amount of pain."

Cancer itself is not painful unless it involves bone or other hard tissue where swelling cannot occur, or unless the cancer obstructs drainage or presses directly on a nerve, the doctors explain.

Dr. Bernard Hallman, head of professional services at Grady Memorial Hospital, commented that he has treated many terminal cancer patients and "I have practically never had to use narcotics."

"Most patients don't need narcotics to be comfortable," Dr. Hallman said. "But the general public still seems to think that cancer is extremely painful and that a person with cancer will die an agonizing death."

PREMATURE USE

In a bulletin for doctors published by the American Cancer

Society, Dr. Callaway warned doctors against the premature use of narcotics, which are sometimes given long in advance of actual pain.

Dr. Callaway declared that the public misconception that cancer is always painful is turning many people with the disease into narcotics addicts and cutting down chances of cure.

If the patient does become addicted, he then neglects a balanced diet, becomes constipated, and his chances of treatment for cancer through surgery, radiation or chemotherapy are "severely reduced," Dr. Callaway said.

"You can explain things to patients and this will take the place of codeine or an aspirin," Dr. Scarborough said. "Cancer patients are not really different from other patients. We've got the same problem of (people asking for drugs or other treatments they incorrectly think they need) with all other antibiotics. Some people think they must have a penicillin shot for everything."

A DETRIMENT

The absence of pain in most cancer cases is actually a detriment to discovery of the disease, Dr. Scarborough continued.

"Maybe it would be good if we did have pain, because that is a distress signal," he said.

Dr. Scarborough, chairman of the executive committee of the American Cancer Society, Georgia division, said he agreed with Dr. Callaway that the public should be educated to the usual absence of pain with cancer to prevent drugs being prescribed unnecessarily.

Dr. Hallman pointed out that most patients, when they are told they have cancer, "mobilize a lot of resources you wouldn't know they have."

NOT EFFECTIVELY

He added that narcotics, even when prescribed, "do not do the job of counteracting pain effectively."

When the patient has taken narcotics before he actually is suffering from pain, he then cannot be given enough narcotic to relieve pain when his pain becomes evident.

Dr. Hallman said that in most cases where the cancer is pressing on a nerve and causing pain, the pain can be relieved through neurosurgery.

Pain has been associated with cancer in most people's minds because cured cancer patients generally don't make announcements about it, Dr. Callaway said. The cancer victims with little or no pain do not often reveal their condition, he added.

The fact is, Dr. Callaway stated, that most patients who die from cancer do so without great physical suffering. Many of them suffer no pain whatsoever.

Stock List Mixed On Eve of Holiday

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market moved cautiously on the eve of a three-day weekend, and prices were mixed. The market will close Monday for the Memorial Day holiday.

Wall Street's hesitancy was the usual thing under the circumstances, especially in view of internal tensions.

Movements of most key stocks were fractional but blue chips made enough progress to give industrial averages a nudge to the upside. Even the electronics and other "romance" stocks were largely quiescent. Exceptions were Universal Match, up another 6 1/2, Collins Radio up 4, and Texas Instruments down 3 1/4.

Further cutbacks by U.S. Steel were no help to steel shares. Big Steel along with Republic and Jones & Laughlin showed slight losses, although Bethlehem gained a fraction.

The market was mixed throughout the day but in the morning there was an attempt at a rally which looked promising for a while. It fizzled.

Some disappointment was expressed in Wall Street that the Federal Reserve Board had taken no action to reduce margins on stock purchases, a step which had been predicted unofficially.
